PREACHER HAS AS MUCH RIGHT AS CHURCH MEMBERS TO DANCE, SAYS EVANGELIST IN CONDEMNING IT

By T. T. JONES.

"Before God I assert that a preacher has the same right to do anything his church members elect to do. Both affect to be Christians. What is wrong for the pastor can not be proper for his flock." With this premise Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, facing one of the largest audiences of the present revival at Second and Washington streets, disposed of the age-mooted question "Is Dancing Sinful?"

"Who of you," he queried, "would want a minister to attend him in his needful moments who indulged as many church folks do in the modern ball rooms? Who, in wishing spiritual consolation, would seek it of the congregation leader addicted to the persistent and continued gayety that attends this means of pleasure? You took vows to obey the discipline of your denomination when you joined it. Likewise did the clergyman. By what course of reasoning can you break your obligations and he can not?

Reaching a climax when he demanded a clear cut difference between the Christian and worldly existence he deeply impressed in more than an hour's address. Scores of people below the age of 35 jammed the aisles in reaching the platform as he concluded to voice an agreement to no longer, if they had been doing so, indulge in terpsichorean pastimes. Others, older, later took a similar step and several not now members, signed cards for church affiliations.

Declaring that his sermon on "the Dance" was to professors of religion and not to those without the fold, the evangelist pleaded for a consistency of action that seemingly gave to the body of Christ's followers one course of action more liberal than that permitted the heads of the various sections that gathered together for worshipping purposes.

"You look at the custom from this viewpoint and it appears a bit different, does it not? he observed. "I want you to observe it from a new angle."

Announcement was made of the second meeting of the new Men's organization at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening at the First Presbyterian church when Messers W. P. Fraser and J. Purkess of Pittsburgh, who failed to arrive for Monday night's service, will speak. At the session's conclusion those attending will go to the tabernacle in a body, where seats will be reserved for them. The purpose of the gathering will be for an association with the laymen's movement that had its origin some time ago in the South.

That a sacred musical concert will be given by the big choir in the tabernacle on next Monday night was also announced. A special program is now beng prepared for the occasion which will be replete with several compelling features. In addition William McEwan will speak on the subject: "From the Vaudeville Stage to the Gospel Platform," which will be the story of his life and conversion to Christianity.

Evangelist's Next Engagement.

In the pre-sermon services Dr. Biederwolf told of his beginning a series of meetings on Wednesday night of next week inJamestown, where twice before he has held special meetings. He will be accompanied only by Mr. McEwan of the evengelistic party for this engagement. Mr. Heaton will proceed to his duties at Daytona Beach, Fla., and Miss Davis will return temporarily to her home in St. Augustine, Fla.

In January Dr. Biederwolf will begin a series of meetings in Philadelphia. He probably will round up the season's work before returning to Winona Lake for the summer Bible Conference in Seattle, Wash., where arrangements are now in the making for a tabernacle meeting such as now being concluded in East Liverpool.

In addition to the Thanksgiving service in the tabernacle and the final one at night the day's activities were begun with a Sunrise service in the First Methodist Episcopal church. Many attended this early gathering which was in charge of Miss Wilma E. Davis, of the evangelistice party.

Rev. J. P.Foy, presiding elder of the Free Methodist church, made the

PREACHER HAS AS MUCH RIGHT AS CHURCH MEMBERS TO DANCE, SAYS EVANGELIST IN CONDEMNING IT

By T. T. JONES.

"Before God I assert that a preacher has the same right to do anything his church members elect to do. Both affect to be Christians. What is wrong for the pastor can not be proper for his flock." With this premise Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, facing one of the largest audiences of the present revival at Second and Washington streets, disposed of the age-mooted question "Is Dancing Sinful?"

"Who of you," he queried, "would want a minister to attend him in his needful moments who indulged as many church folks do in the modern ball rooms? Who, in wishing spiritual consolation, would seek it of the congregation leader addicted to the persistent and continued gayety that attends this means of pleasure? You took vows to obey the discipline of your denomination when you joined it. Likewise did the clergyman. By what course of reasoning can you break your obligations and he can not?

Reaching a climax when he demanded a clear cut difference between the Christian and worldly existence he deeply impressed in more than an hour's address. Scores of people below the age of 35 jammed the aisles in reaching the platform as he concluded to voice an agreement to no longer, if they had been doing so, indulge in terpsichorean pastimes. Others, older, later took a similar step and several not now members, signed cards for church affiliations.

Declaring that his sermon on "the Dance" was to professors of religion and not to those without the fold, the evangelist pleaded for a consistency of action that seemingly gave to the body of Christ's followers one course of action more liberal than that permitted the heads of the various sections that gathered together for worshipping purposes.

"You look at the custom from this viewpoint and it appears a bit different, does it not? he observed. "I want you to observe it from a new angle."

Announcement was made of the second meeting of the new Men's organization at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening at the First Presbyterian church when Messers W. P. Fraser and J. Purkess of Pittsburgh, who failed to arrive for Monday night's service, will speak. At the session's conclusion those attending will go to the tabernacle in a body, where seats will be reserved for them. The purpose of the gathering will be for an association with the laymen's movement that had its origin some time ago in the South.

That a sacred musical concert will be given by the big choir in the tabernacle on next Monday night was also announced. A special program is now beng prepared for the occasion which will be replete with several compelling features. In addition William McEwan will speak on the subject: "From the Vaudeville Stage to the Gospel Platform," which will be the story of his life and conversion to Christianity.

Evangelist's Next Engagement.

In the pre-sermon services Dr. Biederwolf told of his beginning a series of meetings on Wednesday night of next week inJamestown, where twice before he has held special meetings. He will be accompanied only by Mr. McEwan of the evengelistic party for this engagement. Mr. Heaton will proceed to his duties at Daytona Beach, Fla., and Miss Davis will return temporarily to her home in St. Augustine, Fla.

In January Dr. Biederwolf will begin a series of meetings in Philadelphia. He probably will round up the season's work before returning to Winona Lake for the summer Bible Conference in Seattle, Wash., where arrangements are now in the making for a tabernacle meeting such as now being concluded in East Liverpool.

In addition to the Thanksgiving service in the tabernacle and the final one at night the day's activities were begun with a Sunrise service in the First Methodist Episcopal church. Many attended this early gathering which was in charge of Miss Wilma E. Davis, of the evangelistice party.

Rev. J. P.Foy, presiding elder of the Free Methodist church, made the

'Science is Bound by Sectarian Lines: Religion Needs Education."

Julian Huxley, biologist and grandson of Thomas Huxley, who led the fight of science against orthodox religion 50 years ago, said recently that the United States was the only country in the world in which science was being taught along sectarian lines. Huxley, who is engaged in work on sex determination and other problems of biology, had visited many American universities.

"In the state universities I found the professors ready to give their opinions freely on evolution," he said at the New School for Social Research, "but in theological schools many of them were afraid to speak except with extreme caution.

"The United States is the only county in the worl dwhere the attempt is being made to split up science into sects. So long as people insist on closing their eyes to all biological facts which do not fit into their particular creeds, so long will there be a conflict between science and religion in this country.

"The future will probably bring remarkable biological discoveries and developments in th ehuman race. Man is still in his infancy, biologically. Vast possible physical and mental powers are still undeveloped. Giological research in the United States is particularly fortunate in its large number of competent workers and its great resources. Vital progress is being made. There is no doubt that in the not far distant future we shall be able to control of the sex of children. The mechanism of heredity is also being thoroughly investigated. There is no adequate proof of the inheritance of acquired characteristics, such asis now claimed by an Austrian scientist."

There is no real conflict between religion and science, according to the biologist, who continued:

"Many thousands of men and women, particularly in the United States, are unhappy and unable to realize themselves because of the apparent conflict between science and religion. The difficulty is unnecessary. Both orthodox science and orthodox religion must giv eup some of their claims. Our knowledge of the universe is entirely different from what it was 20 years ago, and so is our knowledge of the meaning of religion.

"But a religion is a necessity to most of mankind. Modern psychology shows that it is one of the highest activities, a natural function which needs education and a cultivation. Science must study it as an activity of man just as it studies the building of a honeycomb in a bee.

"The religion of the past has dealt with the unknown, the mystic, the miraculous. The religion of the future will deal with the known, the real, the natural. Religion will be simply the relation of our personalities as a unit to external reality as a unit. First we must organize the inner structure of the mind, then we must organize our knowledge of outer reality and then finally we must harmonize the two in religious experience."

POLICE SOLVE THEFT MYSTERY

Arrest Claude Smith for Deed Committed Last June.

The mystery of the disappearance of a valuable watch from the clothing of a former local railroad employe, said to have been stolen last June during a baseball game at Central park has been cleared up by local police with the arrest of Claude Smith, 22, who, it is claimed, has made a full confession of the theft to Smith, who was arrested Tuesday in East Liverpool, is being held in ajil here while police are hunting the watch, which is still missing.

Smith, it is said, asserted that he sold the watch to one, Bradley Burns, also, it has been learned, is a patient in a hospital in Newport, Ky. Instructions have been wired to police in Newport to investigate.

Smith, whose home is said to be in Parkersburg, W. Va., asserts he took the watch from the owner's pocket while changing clothes in an improvised dressing room near Central park during a baseball game there in June.

HIGH GRIDDERS ARE DEFEATED

Wellsville high school gridders closed their 1924 campaign yesterday afternoon at Steubenville, losing to the powerful Jefferson county eleven by the score of 54 to 0.

The Orange and Black team was not the eleven of former years, and handicapped further by the absence of several players who were on the injured list following the Toronto clash, was unable to resist the terrific thrusts of the Stubbers.

Taylor, the Steubenville fullback, stood out as the big ground gainer of the day, punching the Wellsville line consistently for yardage.

In the face of overwhelming odds, the locals put up a game battle but were unable to advance against the well trained Jefferson countians. The victors scored two touchdowns in each period. The lineup:

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1924.

Shop Early, Mail Early

Uncle Sam, through Postmaster General New, pointing out that the date of Santa Claus' visit is but four weeks' distant, today issued an appeal for early shopping and early mailing as a means of facilitating not only choice selections and prompt deliveries, but also to relieve the burdens of the business house and postal workers.

Last year, the campaign was an unqualified success. It was of great benefit to the people and also enabled postoffice employees to deliver all Christmas mail before noon on December 25. The department again this year asks the co-operation of the public in order that the 1923 record may be equalled, if not excelled.

As the postoffice officials emphasize, when you shop early and mail early, you are helping the postal clerks to eat their yuletide dinners at home and you are greatly benefiting yourselfeves. You have a greater chance to secure a better selection of gifts from stores, you have more time to wrap them securely and you are sure they will arrive at their destination in time to be opened Christmas morning. And, too, you are giving a practical demonstration of the good will that Christmas time signifies.

Heed the suggestion! The clerks behind the counter as well as the postal workers will appreciate your forethought. If all of us pull together and do our shopping and mailing early, it will mean a genuine old-fashioned Christmas celebration.

National Good Faith

It went hard to sacrifice the battleship Washington. She made good target practice and proved the merit of her defensive armor. Yet a brand-new built hull worth $15,000,000 makes an expensive target. And more important than that, in the mind of the average American, was the fact that it left the United States navy weaker than was contemplated in the Washington disarmament treaty, and weaker than many navy men consider really safe.

Nevertheless it was a good deed, done regretfully but in a good sporting spirit. Uncle Sam had agreed to scrap the half-finished Washington, along with various other craft, as evidence of his good faith in proposing a plan to stop competitive navy-building. And he has kept his pledge, regardless of disputes as to whether the other powers have kept theirs scrupulously, and regardless of American jingoes who would have dishonored their country by refusing to make good.

The way to disarm is to disarm. A clear recognition of that truth was the notable fact of the disarmament conference. The United States admitted the principle, and has acted on it without hedging or pettifogging. So Americans have a clear conscience about the matter.

This example is bound to have a wholesome effect on other nations. Nothing is needed more in international relations than the practice of good faith in living up to obligations.

Quicker Action in Politics

The Federation of Labor adds its voice to those of many other organizations urging a readier governmental response to the will of the people as shown in national elections. It wants to abolish the "short session" of congress and convene that body in January instead of having it wait until 13 months after election.

The proposal has very respectable support and has been approved already by the United States senate. There will be an effort to obtain action in the house upon the constitutional amendment providing for the change.

The long delay involved by the present system was suited to an age that lacked railroads, telegraph, telephone, daily papers, radio and airplane. Today all the world moves faster. There is no other country which delays, so long as ours, in making effective a new government or governmental program soberly adopted at the polls. There is nothing to be gained in continuing such delay. There is no more sense in politics than there would be in business in "keeping a man on the job after he has been fired."

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

A BLOW AT THE LEAGUE

Great excitement in Europe about the Egyptian crisis. Egypt government promptly pays $2,500,000 for the killing of Stack, the British sirdar.

Next comes the driving of Egyptian forces out of the Sudan. Egypt declines to approve that, but the British will drive them out, anyhow.

French newspapers see a "blow at the league" in British use of the heavy fight in Egypt. You will notice that those poor gentlemen along the Nile are not invited into any "world court" to get a hearing. They are told, "pay us the money, and get out of the Sudan, or it will be worse for you."

European papers express fear that England is establishing in Egypt another "Ireland," another cause of trouble and fighting without end. You can't have another "Ireland" without also having another complete set of Irishmen. Egype hasn't got them. It's the Irishmen, not Ireland, that did the fighting for 700 years against England. The poor Egyptians are so used to being conquered, so used to having their native dignitaries run over them and through them, scattering crowds right and left, that there isn't very much fight left in them. You can't make a rope of sand.

RATS, VITAMINS, NEW ENGINE

American manufacturers of explosive engines should look carefully into the new French gas turbine, said to combine the advantage of the explosive gas motor and of the steam turbine.

Experiments at Columbia college show that tuberculosis is due largely to lack of vitamins in food. Rats deprived partially of the "vitamin A," or milk fat, grew to fair size. But they lacked the vigor to rear a second generation of young rats. They also showed great susceptibility to disease, particularly to breakdown and premature death, due to lung trouble.

One group of rats with a large allowance of "vitamin A" in the food lived twice as long as those deprived of the full allowance.

When we thoroughly understand vitamins and the mysterious endocrines, ductless glands, we shall be on the way toward living 150 years. That will emphasize many problems, including birth control.

NEW WAR CLOUD

Albert Sarraut, formerly French minister of the colonies and governor general of Indo-China, sees a war cloud forming in Asia. "No one can think without misgivings," he says, "of the preparations Japan is making to head an Asiatic bloc against the European bloc."

He thinks there may come a fight between Japan and the United States "far more terrible in effect on the world than the war in 1914."

No such conflict will come unless Japan wills it and insists upon it. And, no matter how much Japan might desire it, no such war would come if this nation and its government had brains enough to put through a program of thorough preparation.

Japan has 17 factories turning out flying machines night and day. And she isn't building those machines merely to take the mikado's grandchildren for a little ride through the clouds.

This country is making futile experiments with a couple of gas bags imported from Europe and we call that preparation.

Whatever we get from Asia, we shall deserve it, of we don't spend a few of our dollars to make this country safe with flying machines and submarines.

BIG CHIEF IN CHURCH

In old days we sent Christianity to the savage redskin. Now in Dr. Guthrie's Episcopal church in New York, red Indian chiefs are brought into help along Christianity.

Last Sunday "invocations" were offered to the Gods of the Indians, wherever and whoever they may be. Big Chief Os-we-non-ton, which means Running Deer, wearing his feathered war bonnet, "hailed the elements" in his native language. There was another chief there with another strange name, and a good time was had by all.

The Christian church is said to need arousing. Perhaps the red men doing the corn dance, before the altar, an efficient whirling dervish, or a Thibetan prayer mill, might help.

Jean Jaures, French Socialist, one of the ablest men in France, realized in 1914, what the war would mean and worked to stop it. He was murdered, denounced as a traitor. Now his ashes are buried with honor in the Pantheon with the great men of France. So much for today, nobody knows what will happen tomorrow.

They buried Voltaire's dust in the Pantheon also during the successful years of the revolution that his writings created. But, when the kings came back they took the Voltaire ashes out of the Pantheon and scattered them to the winds. That may happen to Jaures.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By S. J. K. HUGHES.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 28.—The birth of a new dawn—the breath of a new day sweeping before it th emighty hordes of dreaming houseseekers, trampling beneath feet and wheels the vast spaces of western Texas, tender in the memories of cattlemen—transplanting the romance of the southern plains country into the cold calculation of commercialism.

Passing is another land—a paradise of fact and fiction—and with it the shattered hopes of hundreds of pioneer cattlemen.

The surrender of the majestic range steer to the milk-pen calf, and the sacrifice of the noble, white-faced Hereford, bowing before the prize-winning Jerseys and Holsteins—the hated breeds of the old-time cowman—have ushered in this new day.

And the great ranges of the plains, where once a man, not so long ago, might wander for days in solitude, are rapidly falling beneath the onslaught of the real estate expert and the pitiful resignation of the cattleman.

"A thousand acres a day will drive the cattleman away," chant the promoters of these gigantic land sales, who, in a period of 30 days, have thrown 2,000,000 acres of range land open to the homeseeker in small farming plots, adding to the 5,000,000 acres that had already been cast on the market.

Within 10 days during the past month sixty thousand acres, a portion of the famous Spade ranch went upon the block, subdivided and offered to the investor for a mere pittance "down and so much a month."

It was only a small portion of the millions of acres that are being prepared for the newcomer and his family.

Ranches—not only in the historic Panhandle, but throughout Texas—that in other days prospered under the blazing of thousands of the almost extinct angular Texas steer and the more popular bald-faced Hereford, have also "gone under the knife."

Range lands stretching forth into millions of acres—ranches where great cities of the nation could be sub-planted and lost in the seemingly endless miles of gramma grass and mesquite—are fast disappearing, giving way to the planter and his cotton, the farmer and his grain, and the breeder, with his choice blooded live stock and dairy equipment.

Only a meagre few of the great ranches of the past remain—and they, too, are slated for the city realtor and his investment program.

From throughout the nation and the far corners of the earth the homeseekers pour over the plains, taking up their farming tracts of not less than 160 acres, erecting serviceable shacks, settling back apparently to stay.

During the year subsequent to the Western Texas chamber of commerce's extensive advertising campaign more than half a million letters of inquiry from prospective settlers have been answered, and it is estimated half of this number have found satisfaction in leaving their homes of the north and east for this new venture.

Huge reclamation projects are daily in the mould, transforming once arid stretches of wild waste lands into fertile farming lands—a veritable mecca of agriculture.

In all modes of travel the newcomers arrive, from the land broker, in his private Pullman, to the settler, in his rattling automobile, piled high with his worldly possessions. Even a few of the famed "covered wagons," reminiscent of another day, appear.

New towns are springing up overnight; and counties, where but a few short months ago there would not have been sufficient inhabitants to empanel a jury, are loudly flaunting their facilities to the world through their chambers of commence and enthusiastic civic organizations.

There is no oil or other promise of riches with staggering promptness—simply the pledge of home to the homeseeker.

DINNER STORIES

There was a canvasser at the door trying to sell Mrs. McNobb a burglar alarm.

"But I don't need any of your burlar alarms," she told the man, making as if to shut the door.

"That's just what the woman next door said," was the reply.

"What do you mean?" asked Mrs. McNobb, now on the alert. She hated "that woman."

"She said that it was no use my calling on you," went on the man, "as you wouldn't need any, as you had nothing worth stealing."

"Give me three," interrupted Mrs. McNobb, gritting her teeth.

A western minister tells a story showing how a bishop, accosted in a Chicago street by a neat but hungry stranger, derived profit from the encounter.

Now the bishop took a fancy to the needy one, took him to a hotel and shared a good dinner with him. Yet, having left his episcopal wallet in the pocket of a different epicopal jacket, he suddenly faced the embarrassment of not having the wherewithal to pay for the dinner.

"Never mind," exclaimed the guest, "I have enjoyed dining with you, and I shall be charmed to pay the price. Allow me."

And the stranger paid for the two. This worried the prelate, who insisted:

"Just let me call a taxi and we'll run up to my place, where I shall have the pleasure of reimbursing you." But the stranger met the suggestion with:

"See here, old man! You've stuck me for a bully good dinner, but hanged if I am going to let you stick me for taxi fare!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: A row of old bookshops. With piles of dusty, dog-eared books. A hoydenish girl in tights. Puffing a cigarette in a back stage doorway. Whatever became of Lottie Gilson. And the Della Fox curl.

The beat of kettle drums. Prowling girls with come-hither looks. Wonder if the Eskimo Pie man still gets his huge royalties. There's Zoe Beckley. A sob sister beauty. The superb indifference of the Russian wolf hound.

A swank club—The Lido-Venice. Always the noise of street drilling. Ocean liner employes seeing the town. Always in groups. This week New York—next week London or Paris. What a life. A sliver of a moon. A hunchback muttering to himself.

A famous Broadway "stool pigeon." Runs a hole in the wall jewelry shop on the side. Eddie Dunn—George M. Cohan's Man Friday. A coiffure parlor diffusing a benign domestic glow. Wicker chairs. Chaise longue. And crystal chandeliers.

Vaudeville agents chasing about to catch the last acts on the bill. More horrible little French plays from the Grand Guignol. Busses that have to go around the block to turn around. Military school dudes. Diamond buckles on a burlesque queen.

Men who live and perish by their wits. Old Second Hand Ike. Who attends first nights. And owns a brown stone front in the Eighties. The tramp of home-goers. A million patterns of restless humanity. Wish I could sing, boss.

Where did the word "bunk" originate? James Oliver Curwood. Just in from the great open spaces. A gay little coupe of orchid hue. Owned by the wife of a handsome and dissolute actor. Coffee and steak odors. Business of wolfing a meal.

In one of the university clubs the other night a prankish group gave a fresh young sprig a gentle hazing. He had been invited for dinner and from the start became overbearing. He was finally invited up to a room. And under the prodding he was forced to stick his head out the window and shout: "Help! help! help! Don't shoot. I'll marry the woman." He left subdued and thoughtful.

In my gangly youth days I was rather cock-sure of myself on a picnic party. I wore immaculate white duck pants and a scarlet tie. My ego wilted, however, when one of the ruffians in overalls pushed me down in a blackberry tart. In such trying moments a falsetto giggle is the most futile thing in the world.

One of the best-known American essayists has given up letters for the prosaic business of writing advertising copy. He says there is more skill in the advertising paragraph than an entire page of the essay. He tells of working for five days on a six line blurb.

Pietro sold chalk statues from a huge basket he carried on his head. He traveled the well-beaten paths of the East Side tenements, always shouting his wares from the curb. Rings were in his ears and his coat was the black velveteen of Montmartre. The other day he died. When the coroner came and looked about for the name of some relatives he found under the mattress $17,000 in currency. Pietro had been in America 12 years.

Such instances give an air of dubiety and evanescence to thrift. Pietro might have enjoyed a little more. Certainly there was nothing romantic about his work—just dull days of skimping and self denial.

Haskin Letter

HOW MONEY GETS DIRTY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The old litera phrase "filthy lucre" has always carried as its pr cipal implication that the source of the wealth question is tainted. The phrase has come to i on a literal meaning in recent years and the s condition of the paper currency in circulation b come to be no less of a problem to the treasury the United States than an annoyance to the pub and, in the opinion of some, a menace to health.

The use of paper currency increases constant Coin has lost the popularity it used to have. T lightness and convenience of paper currency reco mends it universally. But by its very nature and reason of the fact that it circulates so widely, pap money inevitably becomes soiled and perhaps ger laden.

It is very easy thoughtlessly to blame an imp sonal government, far away at Washington, f dirty money, but studies which the treasury h made show that a large part of the blame for soil currency rests upon the people themselves.

Someone has said that an unmixed blessing a rare thing. Experience bears out the aphoris The automobile indubitably is a blessing, but a owner and any pedestrian can think of many dra backs. Few, perhaps, have thought of one whi bears directly on this question of soiled currency.

Who has ever seen a garage man or a gasoli and oil filling station attendant garbed in a full dre suit and wearing immaculate white gloves? No on At least not while the man was on duty. Who h even seen such a man with clean overalls and cle hands? Again, no one, unless he turned up ve early Monday morning—the first customer. T second customer witnessed the beginning of t soiling process which requires only about an h to make fairly complete.

AT THE FILLING STATION

Oil, gasoline, grease, tires—everything about automobile is dirty. The greasy substances, inse rable from mechanical operation, furnish a welcon to dust. Oil dries very slowly. It collects dirt a dust of all sorts. Hands, clothes, face, cuffs, all of apparel, accumulate dirt as a piece of fly-paper a cumulates flies. Nearly every time the greasy t ing station man fills a tank, he handles money usually paper money. It scarcely can be wonder at that money which passes through his hands comes soiled. There are somewhere near fifte million automobiles in the country. Expert mat maticians can figure out how many dirty hands sult from their operation.

This is but one example. It shows, howev how fresh, crisp money, just out of the treasu can become soiled quickly. The soda fountain is other place where money is speedily soiled. On t busy counter are usually pools of spilled drin Syrup is their principal ingredient, and syrup is o of the stickiest of substances. It is another ag in the attraction and collection of dust and dirt, the dollar bill laid on the counter is almost sure have a few spots on it by the time it reaches till.

Paper money is so much a thing of daily that it seems natural to think of it as an almost n ural to think of it as an almost natural phenomen likes the leaves of the trees. But paper curren is not produced by the waving of a wand. One the biggest manufacturing plants in the world p duces it by hard labor and the use of intricate m chinery.

The dollar bill, for instance, costs 1.7 cents make. This seems a small figure taken by its but when it is considered that 49,999,999 of the bills must be put into circulation each month, will be seen the cost mounts up. Those who co plain of dirty money and governmental carelessn are probably unaware that a one-dollar bill rem in circulation only from six to eight months. each one costing 1.7 cents to make it will be se that the actual cost of putting dollars bills in t hands of the people is about 3 per cent a year figure equal to savings bank interest.

If the life of the dollar bill could be prolong only two months the government would save $1,6 600 annually.

The treasury does not exactly ask the gara man to wash his hands in lye soap every time makes change, but it would like to have people b little more careful with money. Find a dry place the soda fountain to throw down the dollar bill.

DON'T CARRY IT CARELESSLY

Another factor in rapid depreciation of pa money is the method of carrying it. It is a comm practice for people to shove paper money into th pockets. Women, especially, will take a handful paper bills, crumple them up and shove them i a hand bag. This means that the next handling almost certain to result in the accumulation of d Each time a bill is crumpled, little creases are ma in it forming lodging places for dirt and dust. T relatively hard surface of the paper is broken a deterioration becomes rapid from that time on.

Officials of the treasury, such as Secretary drew Mellon and Assistant Secretary Dewey, as w as bank officials—men who know what money co —do not carry their money in such fashion. Th fold it carefully, perhaps once, perhaps twice acr in neat creases. Mr. Dewey folds each bill separate This practice does away with spectacular peeling the roll as each bill is withdrawn from pocket wallet separately as it is needed, but it does c serve the currency. If the recipient of a bill nea folded would, upon pocketing it, fold it in the sa creases, the life of the bill would be perhaps doubl

The cost side of the problem is not the only o The sanitary aspect is of the utmost importan That many people are aware of this is amusin evidenced by the following letter which was rece at the treasury toward the end of the Worl war:

"Will you kindly redeem the enclosed $30 pestilence spreading junk with new one-dollar bi And may the good God protect the lady that h the handling of it. I am from California wh your money rings when you handle it and shines the sunlight. But this bacilli-infested junk d not look good to me. Scatter it back of the Hu line in France and it can be depended upon to its deadly work. The least of which would ho worm. Hoping that you may see your way clear act upon this patriotic suggestion, thereby bring the war to a speedy end, I remain, etc."

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1924.

Shop Early, Mail Early

Uncle Sam, through Postmaster General New, pointing out that the date of Santa Claus' visit is but four weeks' distant, today issued an appeal for early shopping and early mailing as a means of facilitating not only choice selections and prompt deliveries, but also to relieve the burdens of the business house and postal workers.

Last year, the campaign was an unqualified success. It was of great benefit to the people and also enabled postoffice employees to deliver all Christmas mail before noon on December 25. The department again this year asks the co-operation of the public in order that the 1923 record may be equalled, if not excelled.

As the postoffice officials emphasize, when you shop early and mail early, you are helping the postal clerks to eat their yuletide dinners at home and you are greatly benefiting yourselfeves. You have a greater chance to secure a better selection of gifts from stores, you have more time to wrap them securely and you are sure they will arrive at their destination in time to be opened Christmas morning. And, too, you are giving a practical demonstration of the good will that Christmas time signifies.

Heed the suggestion! The clerks behind the counter as well as the postal workers will appreciate your forethought. If all of us pull together and do our shopping and mailing early, it will mean a genuine old-fashioned Christmas celebration.

National Good Faith

It went hard to sacrifice the battleship Washington. She made good target practice and proved the merit of her defensive armor. Yet a brand-new built hull worth $15,000,000 makes an expensive target. And more important than that, in the mind of the average American, was the fact that it left the United States navy weaker than was contemplated in the Washington disarmament treaty, and weaker than many navy men consider really safe.

Nevertheless it was a good deed, done regretfully but in a good sporting spirit. Uncle Sam had agreed to scrap the half-finished Washington, along with various other craft, as evidence of his good faith in proposing a plan to stop competitive navy-building. And he has kept his pledge, regardless of disputes as to whether the other powers have kept theirs scrupulously, and regardless of American jingoes who would have dishonored their country by refusing to make good.

The way to disarm is to disarm. A clear recognition of that truth was the notable fact of the disarmament conference. The United States admitted the principle, and has acted on it without hedging or pettifogging. So Americans have a clear conscience about the matter.

This example is bound to have a wholesome effect on other nations. Nothing is needed more in international relations than the practice of good faith in living up to obligations.

Quicker Action in Politics

The Federation of Labor adds its voice to those of many other organizations urging a readier governmental response to the will of the people as shown in national elections. It wants to abolish the "short session" of congress and convene that body in January instead of having it wait until 13 months after election.

The proposal has very respectable support and has been approved already by the United States senate. There will be an effort to obtain action in the house upon the constitutional amendment providing for the change.

The long delay involved by the present system was suited to an age that lacked railroads, telegraph, telephone, daily papers, radio and airplane. Today all the world moves faster. There is no other country which delays, so long as ours, in making effective a new government or governmental program soberly adopted at the polls. There is nothing to be gained in continuing such delay. There is no more sense in politics than there would be in business in "keeping a man on the job after he has been fired."

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

A BLOW AT THE LEAGUE

Great excitement in Europe about the Egyptian crisis. Egypt government promptly pays $2,500,000 for the killing of Stack, the British sirdar.

Next comes the driving of Egyptian forces out of the Sudan. Egypt declines to approve that, but the British will drive them out, anyhow.

French newspapers see a "blow at the league" in British use of the heavy fight in Egypt. You will notice that those poor gentlemen along the Nile are not invited into any "world court" to get a hearing. They are told, "pay us the money, and get out of the Sudan, or it will be worse for you."

European papers express fear that England is establishing in Egypt another "Ireland," another cause of trouble and fighting without end. You can't have another "Ireland" without also having another complete set of Irishmen. Egype hasn't got them. It's the Irishmen, not Ireland, that did the fighting for 700 years against England. The poor Egyptians are so used to being conquered, so used to having their native dignitaries run over them and through them, scattering crowds right and left, that there isn't very much fight left in them. You can't make a rope of sand.

RATS, VITAMINS, NEW ENGINE

American manufacturers of explosive engines should look carefully into the new French gas turbine, said to combine the advantage of the explosive gas motor and of the steam turbine.

Experiments at Columbia college show that tuberculosis is due largely to lack of vitamins in food. Rats deprived partially of the "vitamin A," or milk fat, grew to fair size. But they lacked the vigor to rear a second generation of young rats. They also showed great susceptibility to disease, particularly to breakdown and premature death, due to lung trouble.

One group of rats with a large allowance of "vitamin A" in the food lived twice as long as those deprived of the full allowance.

When we thoroughly understand vitamins and the mysterious endocrines, ductless glands, we shall be on the way toward living 150 years. That will emphasize many problems, including birth control.

NEW WAR CLOUD

Albert Sarraut, formerly French minister of the colonies and governor general of Indo-China, sees a war cloud forming in Asia. "No one can think without misgivings," he says, "of the preparations Japan is making to head an Asiatic bloc against the European bloc."

He thinks there may come a fight between Japan and the United States "far more terrible in effect on the world than the war in 1914."

No such conflict will come unless Japan wills it and insists upon it. And, no matter how much Japan might desire it, no such war would come if this nation and its government had brains enough to put through a program of thorough preparation.

Japan has 17 factories turning out flying machines night and day. And she isn't building those machines merely to take the mikado's grandchildren for a little ride through the clouds.

This country is making futile experiments with a couple of gas bags imported from Europe and we call that preparation.

Whatever we get from Asia, we shall deserve it, of we don't spend a few of our dollars to make this country safe with flying machines and submarines.

Fortunately, however, in the long run, intelligence wins wars and everything else. And, without excessive vanity the white races may say that they have a fair percentage of the world's intelligence on their side—although this country, just now does not show much of it.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: A row of old bookshops. With piles of dusty, dog-eared books. A hoydenish girl in tights, Puffing a cigarette in a back stage doorway. Whatever became of Lottie Gilson. And the Della Fox curl.

The beat of kettle drums. Prowling girls with come-hither looks. Wonder if the Eskimo Pie man still gets his huge royalties. There's Zoe Beckley. A sob sister beauty. The superb indifference of the Russian wolf hound.

A swank club—The Lido-Venice. Always the noise of street drilling. Ocean liner employes seeing the town. Always in groups. This week New York—next week London or Paris. What a life. A sliver of a moon. A hunchback muttering to himself.

A famous Broadway "stool pigeon." Runs a hole in the wall jewelry shop on the side. Eddie Dunn—George M. Cohan's Man Friday. A coiffure parlor diffusing a benign domestic glow. Wicker chairs. Chaise longue. And crystal chandeliers.

Vaudeville agents chasing about to catch the last acts on the bill. More horrible little French plays from the Grand Guignol. Busses that have to go around the block to turn around. Military school dudes. Diamond buckles on a burlesque queen.

Men who live and perish by their wits. Old Second Hand Ike. Who attends first nights. And owns a brown stone front in the Eighties. The tramp of home-goers. A million patterns of restless humanity. Wish I could sing, boss.

Where did the word "bunk" originate? James Oliver Curwood. Just in from the great open spaces. A gay little coupe of orchid hue. Owned by the wife of a handsome and dissolute actor. Coffee and steak odors. Business of wolfing a meal.

In one of the university clubs the other night a prankish group gave a fresh young sprig a gentle hazing. He had been invited for dinner and from the start became overbearing. He was finally invited up to a room. And under the prodding he was forced to stick his head out the window and shout: "Help! help! help! Don't shoot. I'll marry the woman." He left subdued and thoughtful.

In my gangly youth days I was rather cock-sure of myself on a picnic party. I wore immaculate white duck pants and a scarlet tie. My ego wilted, however, when one of the ruffians in overalls pushed me down in a blackberry tart. In such trying moments a falsetto giggle is the most futile thing in the world.

One of the best-known American essayists has given up letters for the prosaic business of writing advertising copy. He says there is more skill in the advertising paragraph than an entire page of the essay. He tells of working for five days on a six line blurb.

Pietro sold chalk statues from a huge basket he carried on his head. He traveled the well-beaten paths of the East Side tenements, always shouting his wares from the curb. Rings were in his ears and his coat was the black velveteen of Montmartre. The other day he died. When the coroner came and looked about for the name of some relatives he found under the mattress $17,000 in currency. Pietro had been in America 12 years.

Such instances give an air of dubiety and evanescence to thrift. Pietro might have enjoyed a little more. Certainly there was nothing romantic about his work—just dull days of skimping and self denial.

Haskin Letter

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

HOW MONEY GETS DIRTY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The old literary phrase "filthy lucre" has always carried as its principal implication that the source of the wealth in question is tainted. The phrase has come to take on a literal meaning in recent years and the sanitary condition of the paper currency in circulation has come to be no less of a problem to the treasury of the United States than an annoyance to the public and, in the opinion of some, a menace to health.

The use of paper currency increases constantly. Coin has lost the popularity it used to have. The lightness and convenience of paper currency recommends it universally. But by its very nature and by reason of the fact that it circulates so widely, paper money inevitably becomes soiled and perhaps germ-laden.

It is very easy thoughtlessly to blame an impersonal government, far away at Washington, for dirty money, but studies which the treasury has made show that a large part of the blame for soiled currency rests upon the people themselves.

Someone has said that an unmixed blessing is a rare thing. Experience bears out the aphorism. The automobile indubitably is a blessing, but any owner and any pedestrian can think of many drawbacks. Few, perhaps, have thought of one which bears directly on this question of soiled currency.

Who has ever seen a garage man or a gasoline and oil filling station attendant garbed in a full dress suit and wearing immaculate white gloves? No one. At least not while the man was on duty. Who has even seen such a man with clean overalls and clean hands? Again, no one, unless he turned up very early Monday morning—the first customer. The second customer witnessed the beginning of the soiling process which requires only about an hour to make fairly complete.

AT THE FILLING STATION

Oil, gasoline, grease, tires—everything about an automobile is dirty. The greasy substances, inseparable from mechanical operation, furnish a welcome to dust. Oil dries very slowly. It collects dirt and dust of all sorts. Hands, clothes, face, cuffs, all oily apparel, accumulate dirt as a piece of fly-paper accumulates flies. Nearly every time the greasy filling station man fills a tank, he handles money—usually paper money. It scarcely can be wondered at that money which passes through his hands becomes soiled. There are somewhere near fifteen million automobiles in the country. Expert mathematicians can figure out how many dirty hands result from their operation.

This is but one example. It shows, however, how fresh, crisp money, just out of the treasury, can become soiled quickly. The soda fountain is another place where money is speedily soiled. On the busy counter are usually pools of spilled drinks. Syrup is their principal ingredient, and syrup is one of the stickiest of substances. It is another agent in the attraction and collection of dust and dirt, for the dollar bill laid on the counter is almost sure to have a few spots on it by the time it reaches the till.

Paper money is so much a thing of daily life that it seems natural to think of it as an almost natural to think of it as an almost natural phenomenon, likes the leaves of the trees. But paper currency is not produced by the waving of a wand. One of the biggest manufacturing plants in the world produces it by hard labor and the use of intricate machinery.

The dollar bill, for instance, costs 1.7 cents to make. This seems a small figure taken by itself, but when it is considered that 49,999,999 of these bills must be put into circulation each month, it will be seen the cost mounts up. Those who complain of dirty money and governmental carelessness are probably unaware that a one-dollar bill remains in circulation only from six to eight months. At each one costing 1.7 cents to make it will be seen that the actual cost of putting dollars bills in the hands of the people is about 3 per cent a year—a figure equal to savings bank interest.

If the life of the dollar bill could be prolonged only two months the government would save $1,666,600 annually.

The treasury does not exactly ask the garage man to wash his hands in lye soap every time he makes change, but it would like to have people be a little more careful with money. Find a dry place on the soda fountain to throw down the dollar bill.

DON'T CARRY IT CARELESSLY

Another factor in rapid depreciation of paper money is the method of carrying it. It is a common practice for people to shove paper money into their pockets. Women, especially, will take a handful of paper bills, crumple them up and shove them into a hand bag. This means that the next handling is almost certain to result in the accumulation of dirt. Each time a bill is crumpled, little creases are made in it forming lodging places for dirt and dust. The relatively hard surface of the paper is broken and deterioration becomes rapid from that time on.

Officials of the treasury, such as Secretary Andrew Mellon and Assistant Secretary Dewey, as well as bank officials—men who know what money costs—do not carry their money in such fashion. They fold it carefully, perhaps once, perhaps twice across in neat creases. Mr. Dewey folds each bill separately. This practice does away with spectacular peeling of the roll as each bill is withdrawn from pocket or wallet separately as it is needed, but it does conserve the currency. If the recipient of a bill neatly folded would, upon pocketing it, fold it in the same creases, the life of the bill would be perhaps doubled.

The cost side of the problem is not the only one. The sanitary aspect is of the utmost importance. That many people are aware of this is amusingly evidenced by the following letter which was received at the treasury toward the end of the World war:

"Will you kindly redeem the enclosed $30 of pestilence spreading junk with new one-dollar bills? And may the good God protect the lady that has the handling of it. I am from California where your money rings when you handle it and shines in the sunlight. But this bacilli-infested junk does not look good to me. Scatter it back of the Huns' line in France and it can be depended upon to do its deadly work. The least of which would hookworm. Hoping that you may see your way clear to act upon this patriotic suggestion, thereby bringing the war to a speedy end, I remain, etc."

CHESTER LOSES FINAL CONTEST

New Cumberland Takes Hard Fought Clash, Score 13 to 0.

Chester High football team closed the season yesterday bi losing a hard fought battle to New Cumberland, score 13 to 0.

The contest played at the county seat was witnessed by one of the largest crowds that ever attended a scholastic gridiron battle in Hancock county.

New Cumberland showed up in excellent form and started out in whirlwind fashion scoring both touchdowns in the first two periods of play. The locals, battling gamely from start to finish failed to peneterate the goal line of their ancient rivals. Time after time they carried the ball up the field but lacked the punch necessary to score.

The winners scored their points by straight football tactics. Forward passing, while tried often by both elevens, brought some gains, but failed to figure in the tallying. The game while bitterly contested from whistle to whistle, was comparatively clean and held the interest of the large assemblage who gathered from all sections of the county to witness the annual struggle for supremacy.

CARL McCUTCHEON STARS FOR PITT

Carl "Red" McCutcheon, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. McCutcheon, Second street and Virginia avenue, played a prominent role in the victory yesterday of University of Pittsburgh over Penn State, score 24 to 3.

The former Chester high school star, was one of the outstanding figures in the contest. He was put into the lineup at the opening of the game and remained in the battle until within a few minutes of the close when he was withdrawn after the contest was safe.

His work of carrying the ball and scurrying the ends of the opponent team was one of the finest exhibitions witnessed on Forbes Field this season and firmly established him as a fixture for the 1925 eleven. He scored one of the touchdowns and materially aided in the three others credited to the winners.

Wife of Local Potter Testifies For Husband

Tells how "VENDOL" relieved stomach, liver and kdney troubles of 10 years' standing and enabled him to gain 10 lbs. in weight.

According to Mathew's Medicine Store the juices of the twelve roots, barks and leaves from which Vendol is made have been acknowledged by scientists for years as the finest remedies for such complaints as stiff, aching joints, stomach troubles, torpid sluggish livers, weakened kidneys and constipation.

Among the latest local people to praise Vendol publicly is Mrs. E. Emmerling, Shadyside, West End, East Liverpool, Ohio. In a recent signed statement she says.

"My husband had been sick for over 10 years and during that time nothing ever helped him. I've seen him suffer so from indigestion he'd walk the floor for hours at night and he had no appetite for the best meal I could cook. His liver was sluggish and sometimes he'd get so faint and dizzy he'd have to sit down to keep from falling. He had pains in the back and rheumatism, lost weight and was in a very bad condition until he started on Vendol about two months ago.

"In this short time he's like a new man, has gained 10 lbs. in weight and eats anything I put before him. The dizziness has disappeared, he feels stronger and looks better than he has for 15 years. Even the men at the Homer-Laughlin China Co., where he works, can notice the wonderful improvement in his condition."

Insist on Vendol! In East Liverpool it is sold only by Mathews' Medicine Store.

HEALTH BOARD RULES ON MILK

Bans Supply Unless Herds Pass Tuberculin Test.

A resolution, prohibiting the sale of milk in this city from herds, which have not passed the tuberculin test, was adopted by the board of health at its regular monthly meeting held in the health clinic rooms in the Diamond, Wednesday evening.

Mayor Charles Brown, who attended the meeting, discussed with the members questions regarding health board matters. Requisitions for licenses and supplies for 1925 were made.

No successor to Joseph T. Croxall has yet been announced by Mayor Brown. An effort is being made to have Mr. Croxall reconsider his resignation.

Ten cases of contagious diseases were reported during the month. Of this number, seven were of tuberculosis, two of scarlet fever and one of erysipilas. City Health Commissioner Dr. John Fraser reported the city free from smallpox, but advised vaccinations to guard against epidemics, which are prevailing in Youngstown, Akron and other centers. free exhibition of armed troops and whirring airplanes was a warning to the natives to undertake no more such uprisings in protest of the British policy resulting from the murder of Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptian armies and Sudan's Governor-General.

CAIRO, Nov. 28. — Lord Allenby, British high commissioner in Egypt, pushed the vigorous campaign against the factions held responsible for the assassination of Sir Lee Stack and plots to kill Allenby and other British and Egyptian officials by further arrests of Egyptian deputies today. The names of the men taken into custody were not revealed by the British authorities.

A leader of the student forces, styling themselves "Zaghul's Army," also was arrested after the discovery of the plot to kill Lord Allenby.

Plot Against Allenby.

The British authorities said that the foreign dignitaries and close associates of Zaghlul Pasha, who were arrested yesterday, were held responsible for speeches inflaming extremists to the fever of feeling which resulted in the killing of Sir Lee, commander-in-chief of British troops in Egypt.

It is possible, according to indications today, that some of those arrested yesterday and today will be implicated directly with the plot against Sir Lee, as well as that believed aimed at the life of Lord Allenby.

Three deputies who threatened to resign after the first arrests, withdrew their resignations when they learned that the prisoners had been turned over to the Egyptian authorities.

Twelve Arrests Made.

Twelve arrests have been made thus far today and it is understood that 35 more arrests have been ordered.

A Nationalist delegation, including several members of the cabinet which retired, when Premier Zaghlul Pasha resigned, entered a protest against Premier Ziwar Pasha's statements, which they claim savor of fear on the part of the Egyptian people.

The Nationalists also insist on Egypt's rights in the Sudan, and charge that the government has no excuse for withdrawing from the Sudan.

England has ignored the Egyptian Constitution, they declared.

and whose broad public spirit and commanding business ability I appreciated and admired.

"I feel, as, I am certain, that you all feel, that this city has sustained a great and irreparable loss by the death of Mr. Patterson, coming as it did into the busiest moment of his life and when his mind was crowded with generous projects for the betterment of this city. If we did not believe that there is a Supreme Ruler who presides over the destiny of men. One who does all things wisely and well, we should feel disposed to speak of Mr. Patterson's death as an untimely and tragic event. But the Almighty makes no mistakes. He takes no one away a moment too soon, nor leaves him here a moment too long. Every one is immortal until his task is finished.

"Death's true name is—onward;
No discordance in the roll and march of that
Eternal harmony whereto the worlds beat time.

"And there was no discordance, nor slipping of cog wheels, in the seeming calamity which took Mr. Patterson away.

Foremost Citizen.

"Our local paper in announcing his death spoke of him as our foremost citizen, and, I am sure, that that is the estimate of all who knew him and are aware of all he did for the progress and betterment of this city. He has left behind tokens of that civic interest which will be permanent monuments to his memory, and which will call forth the grateful appreciation of generations yet unborn.

"Mr. Patterson came to this city a poor boy, without any capital excepting native ability, his energy and enterprise, and he died one of the city's richest men. And the wealth he accumulated came not as the result of sheer good luck or the whim of kindly fortune, but was the legitimate and normal fruitage of the insight and faith and energy and persistence of a man of rare business genius.

"Mr. Pattreson was a man of exceptional business ability. Perhaps we failed to realize that. He was so ordinary in walk and conversation that we failed to perceive that in some ways he was extraordinary. Genius is not easy to detect when it is clad in homespun. There is one word explains the great success of Mr. Patterson, and that word is, work. He was an incessant and tireless worker. If there be no work in heaven Mr. Patterson is not happy there, for he was never happy here excepting when he was busy. But heaven is, we are confident, a place of unceasing activities and of exalted occupations.

Deeply Religious.

"Mr. Patterson was too big a man to be absorbed by mere worldly success. It neither filled the ranges of his being, nor made a snob of him. Increasing wealth wrought no change in him. Through all his success he remained the same humble, kindly, unassuming individual, of simple habits, plain as the plainest man. And that is real greatness, for as Emerson says, 'Nothing is more simple than greatness, indeed, to be simple is to be great.'

"We entertained a wrong idea of Mr. Patterson if we regarded him to be a mere worldling whose one absorbing aim was to make money. At the core of his being he was a deeply religious man. He had been brought up in a pious Methodist home and he never wandered far from its example and teaching. The first five dollars he ever earned he laid on the altar of Christ, and the incident made so deep an impression on his mind that he often remarked that he regarded his success in life to be God's blessing on that act of his early life."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The steel and industrial stocks were the center of a strong and lively forward movement of stock prices in the early trading today, with United States steel leading the advance in the same vigorous manner as in the preceding sessions of the week. Steel common, from which a dividend of 1¾ per cent. was marked off today, gained more than a point in the first half hour, during which trading in the stock was unusually heavy.

The principal independent steel stocks continued their activity, and gains of a point or two were recorded in this period by Gulf States, Crucible, Bethlehem, American Steel Foundry, Replogle, Vanadium, Otis, and Universal Pipe. International Nickel moved up to a new high above 25. Buying of steel stocks was accompanied by further optimistic statements with respect to the present performances and future prospects of the steel industry, with predictions that the next monthly report of the Steel Corporation would show a large increase in unfilled tonnage.

A number of specialty an dindustrial stocks were carried forward to higher price levels on the crest of another wave of speculative enthusiasm. The list included the equipment stocks, Baldwin and Pullman, United States Realty, Studebaker, Mallinson, Famous Players, Macy, Kinney, May Department Stores, Simmons company. The list was searched for stocks of companies which are expected to benefit from any general revival of business but which have not participated in the advance in prices in the current violent swing of the speculative pendulum.

One who does all things wisely and well, we should feel disposed to speak of Mr. Patterson's death as an untimely and tragic event. But the Almighty makes no mistakes. He takes no one away a moment too soon, nor leaves him here a moment too long. Every one is immortal until his task is finished.

"Death's true name is—onward;
No discordance in the roll and march of that
Eternal harmony whereto the worlds beat time.

"And there was no discordance, nor slipping of cog wheels, in the seeming calamity which took Mr. Patterson away.

Foremost Citizen.

"Our local paper in announcing his death spoke of him as our foremost citizen, and, I am sure, that that is the estimate of all who knew him and are aware of all he did for the progress and betterment of this city. He has left behind tokens of that civic interest which will be permanent monuments to his memory, and which will call forth the grateful appreciation of generations yet unborn.

"Mr. Patterson came to this city a poor boy, without any capital excepting native ability, his energy and enterprise, and he died one of the city's richest men. And the wealth he accumulated came not as the result of sheer good luck or the whim of kindly fortune, but was the legitimate and normal fruitage of the insight and faith and energy and persistence of a man of rare business genius.

"Mr. Pattreson was a man of exceptional business ability. Perhaps we failed to realize that. He was so ordinary in walk and conversation that we failed to perceive that in some ways he was extraordinary. Genius is not easy to detect when it is clad in homespun. There is one word explains the great success of Mr. Patterson, and that word is, work. He was an incessant and tireless worker. If there be no work in heaven Mr. Patterson is not happy there, for he was never happy here excepting when he was busy. But heaven is, we are confident, a place of unceasing activities and of exalted occupations.

Deeply Religious.

"Mr. Patterson was too big a man to be absorbed by mere worldly success. It neither filled the ranges of his being, nor made a snob of him. Increasing wealth wrought no change in him. Through all his success he remained the same humble, kindly, unassuming individual, of simple habits, plain as the plainest man. And that is real greatness, for as Emerson says, 'Nothing is more simple than greatness, indeed, to be simple is to be great.'

"We entertained a wrong idea of Mr. Patterson if we regarded him to be a mere worldling whose one absorbing aim was to make money. At the core of his being he was a deeply religious man. He had been brought up in a pious Methodist home and he never wandered far from its example and teaching. The first five dollars he ever earned he laid on the altar of Christ, and the incident made so deep an impression on his mind that he often remarked that he regarded his success in life to be God's blessing on that act of his early life."

Soupkup came to DuBois last Saturday, registering from Cleveland, told several parties that he had been there about thirteen years ago and at that time was employed by the china company as a designer and that the company owed him $5,000.

Neither Mr. Jackson nor Mr. Darden had any connection with the company against whom Soupkup held a grievance. It is also declared that Soupkup never did deal with the China company which at that time was known as the Bohemian Art company, but that he came to Falls Creek as a designer of fancy vases, etc., and was given office space in another concern.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The steel and industrial stocks were the center of a strong and lively forward movement of stock prices in the early trading today, with United States steel leading the advance in the same vigorous manner as in the preceding sessions of the week. Steel common, from which a dividend of 1¾ per cent. was marked off today, gained more than a point in the first half hour, during which trading in the stock was unusually heavy.

The principal independent steel stocks continued their activity, and gains of a point or two were recorded in this period by Gulf States, Crucible, Bethlehem, American Steel Foundry, Replogle, Vanadium, Otis, and Universal Pipe. International Nickel moved up to a new high above 25. Buying of steel stocks was accompanied by further optimistic statements with respect to the present performances and future prospects of the steel industry, with predictions that the next monthly report of the Steel Corporation would show a large increase in unfilled tonnage.

A number of specialty an dindustrial stocks were carried forward to higher price levels on the crest of another wave of speculative enthusiasm. The list included the equipment stocks, Baldwin and Pullman, United States Realty, Studebaker, Mallinson, Famous Players, Macy, Kinney, May Department Stores, Simmons company. The list was searched for stocks of companies which are expected to benefit from any general revival of business but which have not participated in the advance in prices in the current violent swing of the speculative pendulum.

SHAVINGS AND SAWDUST FOUND IN DR. BIEDERWOLF'S TABERNACLE

Her parents evidently looking over some books near the entrance of the tabernacle a little girl dashed back to the platform where Campaign Manager James Heaton and a friend, the only persons there, were preparing to leave on Wednesday night. She grasped the smiling member of the evangelistic party by the hand and started to lead him to the speaker's rostrum.

"I must go now," he said.

"I'll take you to the door," she said, and hand in hand they went along.

"How old are you?" Mr. Heaton inquired.

"Four," was the quick response.

"Well, good night, little girl," farewelled the singer and tabernacle builder.

"Good night to you, 'Sunny Jim,'" lisped the youngster as she closed the door.

"Who is she?" inquired his companion.

"I don't know," was the smiling reply.

Thus is evidenced even among the youngsters his acquired name and the esteem in which the party leader is held in tabernacle circles.

"What a wonderful thing it would be if East Liverpool had a permanent structure like this tabernacle so that frequent union meetings of this sort could be held at any time" commented Dr. Biederwolf on Thanksgiving morning before his sermon. "It takes so much preparation to erect one that you naturally are kept from doing so except at infrequent periods. With one ready you could have a shorter series of services at any time.

"You would not need a $250,000 structure with opera seats and a floor. Think of the noise you would have with a floor and your feet would be cold with the air under it. By just a bit more durability and the stopping of all cracks an edifice like this would be just the thing for any lecture or service you would care for. Dust goes down with shavings and these can be replenished at intervals. Union meetings thus could be guaranteed annually.

Rev. W. E. Stokes, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, it is disclosed, presided at the funeral of the mother of Miss Mary Reed, the young missionary who became contaminated by leprosy and returned to devote her life to them while thus afflicted, of whom Dr. Biederwolf spoke so glowingly in his lecture on Monday night.

All the money in the Thanksgiving morning offering will be turned over to the City hospital, according to the long prevailing custom in East Liverpool. The amount procured was taken in charge by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, Secretary of the East Liverpool Ministerial Association.

Following the Thanksgiving morning service a panoramic photograph of those in attendance with the evangelistic party and the campaign executive committee was taken on Second street.

Dr. F. A. Dean, president of the W. E. Biederwolf Union Evangelistic Association, after a several day's absence by reason of a slight illness, has resumed his activities in the final days of the campaign at the tabernacle.

Barring occasional instances in which Harry Walkins, Oliver Johnson and others have done so, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Faulk, of Sixth and Washington streets, have taken Dr. Biederwolf to and from the tabernacle with great regularity. Because of his perspiring condition following his sermon a closed car has always been necessary for this purpose. His hosts have accordingly been of great aid in important part of the campaign work.

invocation at the evening service and Rev. John T. Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, the consecration prayer. Mr. McEwan sang "I Will Not Forget Thee Nor Leave Thee."

Paul's words to the Coronthians, "Therefore he that is in doubt is condemned if he indulges. All things not of faith are sin," foundationed Dr. Biederwolf's viewpoint on dancing.

He declared the principle of sacrifice must run through every life that expects to be successful and maintain that religion that did sacrifice the lower tendencies to attain Jesus Christ was spurious.

Condemns Round Dancing.

He averred, too, that things called upon to give up depended upon the positions of those so doing.

The so-called round dances were those which he inveighed against. "Against the Minuet, Virginia reel and cotillions or the square dances, I register no objections," he said. "These, therefore, are but temporarily used these days as sops to public opinion Where you find one church member favoring the waltz, I can bring ten not in it who will aver they would give it up if they ever joined a congregation."

Dr. Biederwolf declared his chief indictment against the dance was that it had its basis in the passions of human nature.

"The dance originated in the mingling of abandoned women and men of questionable character in Greece. There are no square dances in the brothel. There is little delight in dancing without the opposite sex. The testimony of dancers themselves indicated the truth of the indictment as well as Lord Byron's writings.

The evangelist was particularly emphatic in an affirmative reply to a quoted young girl's observation: "I am not responsible for a young man's virtue." In thundering tones he observed, "If you young women are not, who are? Assuredly you are your brother's keeper in this respect.

"Do you ask Jesus Christ to be your partner on the dancing floor. Paul said to not eat meat if it offended any about it. Do you think of herm

Dr. Biederwolf quoted freely from Paul to indicate the Scriptures were against this form of pleasure.

All the church desciplines, he averred, are also against dancing and have been.

"The Methodists have been attempting to do away with restrictions for years but each time they have but driven disapproval further into it.

"Because of this liberty which they take there are church people in East Liverpool, who should be shining for God, who are so far away from Him as to be a hindrance to the coming of the Kingdom. "When you spend more money for gasoline than you do for the kingdom of God; when you pay more for music and flowers in one afternoon reception than your church in an entire year and give to your lodges more than to your churches then you are not square with God.

The evangelist deprecated the lack of Thanksgiving in the lives of many people.

"Your talents in every line should be utilized first of all in God's service. The singer, the player, the preacher and all in other lines are equally amendable to this necessity.

And how many do waste their time in frivilous, no account things. You have time for the movies, bridge whist, vaudeville and pink tea society affairs. Yours is God's time given you and you waste it with impunity in this manner. You prefer to utilize in ways He did not expect you to do.

"I have never met more generous people than here in East Liverpool and yet there are many in these days who have been standing in the way of a greater blessing in this campaign by not lining up and doing your part. These have not fully given themselves to God."

Dr. Dean Presides

The Thanksgiving service was presided over by Dr. F. A. Dean, president of the East Liverpool Ministerial association.

The Scripture lesson, the 66th Psalm, was read by Rev. W. E. Stokes, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. The invocation was made by Dr. W. H. Clark, pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian church, and Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, read President Coolidge's proclamation. The consecration prayer at the close of the service was made by Adjutant A. F. Dean of the Salvation Army.

Mr. McEwan sank as the morning solo "Through Him Now I See."

Wednesday Night Meeting.

Before a good sized audience Dr. Biederwolf preached on "Pontius Pilate," on Wednesday night. At the close of the service about 20 persons responded to the invitation.

During its progress and the after service lights were dimmed in the auditorium except that made by the lighted cross over the platform.

Peace and comfort in this life and security in that to come were indicated by the evangelist in the discourse given. His text was "What Shall I Do With Jesus, Him That is Called the Christ?"

Dr. Biederwolf quoted freely from Paul to indicate the Scriptures were against this form of pleasure.

All the church desciplines, he averred, are also against dancing and have been.

"The Methodists have been attempting to do away with restrictions for years but each time they have but driven disapproval further into it.

"Because of this liberty which they take there are church people in East Liverpool, who should be shining for God, who are so far away from Him as to be a hindrance to the coming of the Kingdom. We should do everything to the glory of God. If the religion of Jesus Christ does not make a difference the church man and woman and the unconverted, how can one recommend Him for the salvation of souls?

"And they first gave their own selves to the Lord.

"Paul's words to the Corinthans expresses how proper Thanksgiving can be made to God" declared Dr. Biederwolf Thursday morning in the annual Union Service following the issuance of President Coolidge's proclamation which this year was held in the Second and Washington streets tabernacle.

"Thus would be brought about the millenium glory which he expected the earth to enjoy. Instead of the shedding of blood for territory nations doing this would put away all ignorance and shame and individuals in them would have a new life, common character and general reference.

"If you were really thankful to God for the manifold blessings that hae been vouchsafed you, your talents would go with the giving of yourself to Him. Your time also would be His and your treasure too would go with he gift.

"And from such a departure would come to you an unprecedented peace, purity and power."

Dr. Biederwolf vividly described the first Thanksgiving in Massachusetts when the first band of colonists decimated by disease and hunger set apart a day for fasting and prayer, which later was turned into an interim of Thankfulness when a ship from England with additional people for the community and supplies of food, clothing and medicine put in its appearance.

"Nine-tenths of the wealth of the world are in the hands of churchmen and yet you spend $43,000,000 for chewing gum, $194,000,000 for millinery, $640,000,000 for soft drinks, $800,000,000 for jewelry and $6,400,000,000 for tobacco and cigarettes annually.

"Amusement houses are packed and churches empty. There are more church members in movie and show houses than in the weekly prayer meetings. You find plenty of time to neglect the worship of Almighty God.

"And in society people will hold receptions for dogs, having diamonds in their ears and seal skin coats on them and even having marriage and funeral services for them.

"When you spend more money for gasoline than you do for the kingdom of God; when you pay more for music and flowers in one afternoon reception than your church in an entire year and give to your lodges more than to your churches then you are not square with God.

The evangelist deprecated the lack of Thanksgiving in the lives of many people.

"Your talents in every line should be utilized first of all in God's service. The singer, the player, the preacher and all in other lines are equally amendable to this necessity.

And how many do waste their time in frivilous, no account things. You have time for the movies, bridge whist, vaudeville and pink tea society affairs. Yours is God's time given you and you waste it with impunity in this manner. You prefer to utilize in ways He did not expect you to do.

"I have never met more generous people than here in East Liverpool and yet there are many in these days who have been standing in the way of a greater blessing in this campaign by not lining up and doing your part. These have not fully given themselves to God."

Dr. Dean Presides

The Thanksgiving service was presided over by Dr. F. A. Dean, president of the East Liverpool Ministerial association.

The Scripture lesson, the 66th Psalm, was read by Rev. W. E. Stokes, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. The invocation was made by Dr. W. H. Clark, pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian church, and Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, read President Coolidge's proclamation. The consecration prayer at the close of the service was made by Adjutant A. F. Dean of the Salvation Army.

Mr. McEwan sank as the morning solo "Through Him Now I See."

Wednesday Night Meeting.

Before a good sized audience Dr. Biederwolf preached on "Pontius Pilate," on Wednesday night. At the close of the service about 20 persons responded to the invitation.

During its progress and the after service lights were dimmed in the auditorium except that made by the lighted cross over the platform.

Peace and comfort in this life and security in that to come were indicated by the evangelist in the discourse given. His text was "What Shall I Do With Jesus, Him That is Called the Christ?"

Hunters are Warned Against New Disease Carried by Rabbits

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Rabbit hunters are advised by local State game protectors to carry a cake of soap as well as their gun, so that they can fight a new disease.

The disease, which is fatal to humans, is known as tularemnia, and is detected by black spots on the vital organs, while tuberculosis in rabbits is detected by white spots on the liver.

The best precaution against tularemnia is to wash the hands with strong soapsuds immediately it is discovered, according to doctors.

Asked at a Rotary club meeting in Glasgow recently as to when he intended to retire, Sir Harry Lauder said he would do so "when the audiences cease to come into the theatre, and I hope that will be a long time off."

A PARTNER OF SUNLIGHT

Cod-liver oil has aptly been called the partner of sunlight. Both out of Nature's storehouse of energy are of supreme importance to a child with rickets.

Scott's Emulsion

and sunlight have been used for decades to give strength to weak-bones. A little of Scott's Emulsion with each feeding does wonders for a malnourished child or adult.

Keep your boy or girl out in the sunlight and give them Scott's Emulsion everyday—regularly!

Miss Mabel Finley And John Calhoon Wed on Wednesday

The marriage of Miss Mabel Finley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Finley, and John F. Calhoon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Calhoon, both of Georgetown, Pa., was solemnized in Christ's Episcopal church of New Brighton, Pa., Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the pastor, Rev. W. H. Anthony, officiating.

The bride wore a gown of sand brocade satin and crepe, with hat to match. She carried pink sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Previous to her marriage she was employed at the D. M. Ogilvie's store here.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Midland high school, with the class of 1921, and also of the Ohio Valley Business college.

The attendants included Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Peppard of Georgetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Calhoon left immediately following the ceremony for a brief eastern trip, after which they will be at home to friends on Riverside avenue, Wellsville, where the bridegroom is employed.

Elks' Thanksgiving Dance.

A special dance program by Finley's Melody Masters, which will appeal equally to the lovers of the waltz and the "fans of fox trot," as well as those who like the action of the "Paul Jones," and other lively numbers of a similar nature, together with feature numbers by a well known helicon player, vocal selections and other bits of entertainment are expected to contribute toward making the Thanksgiving dance to be held tonight by the Elks in their Fifth street home one of the most successful of the season.

The Melody Masters' band consists of seven players, R. B. Finley, pianist; Theodore Ruta, saxophone; R. C. Perkins, cornet; Martin Juhn, saxophone; Ralph Sturgeon, drum and cornet; Ray Allen, banjo, and E. L. Gilson, trombone. The orchestra will be augmented by the addition of Shields Junesch of Cleveland, helicon player, who joined the band last night for its dance at the Alliance Elks' home. Special illuminating effects by R. O. Perkins, will be used during the dance. The program will start at 9 o'clock.

The dance numbers follow:

Miss Geon Entertains.

Miss Beth Geon entertained the members of the Jolly Five club in a most delightful manner Wednesday evening at her home in Phoenix avenue. A short business session was held during the early part of the evening, after which music and games were enjoyed. Miss Edith Smith presided at the piano.

Following the social hours, a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess' mother, Mrs. Joseph Geon.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Mary Kennedy of Phoenix avenue, Chester, Wednesday, December 3.

Here's Quick and Lasting Relief from

PILES

For years the generally accepted treatment for Hemorrhoids or Piles has been by the insertion of many so-called antiseptics and astringents into the rectum. Such treatments, while they in many cases gave relief, never reahed or ated on the cause of the trouble and this was also true of surgical operations, for the surgeon's knife did not cure but simply removed the formation after development.

You've got to attack the real cause of the Piles and not the Piles themselves and you've got to do it from a constitutional standpoint and this is just what the Hamadala treatment does. It attacks the cause and not the formation and the cause once removed, all those painful, congested, knotted and strangulated blood vessels are restored to their normal function and blind, bleeding or protruding piles become a thing of the past.

The Hamadala treatment can now be obtained at C. G. Anderson's, J. D. Holloway's and all good druggists under a rigid guarantee. Out of town sufferers can obtain by mail. Price $1.00. The Hamadala Co., Box 445, Buffalo, N. Y.

Che-ro Club Session.

The Che-ro club members were entertained in a charming manner last evening, in the home of Mrs. Joseph McKenna in Denver street. Progressive euchre and a guesing contest were enjoyed. Trophies for the euchre were awarded Mrs. William Moore and Mrs. William Riddle, while the souvenier for the contest was given to Mrs. Nell Reark.

At the close of the social hours, a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess, aided by her daughter, Margaret and Helen. Covers were arranged for 16 persons. Each guest received a pink rosebud as a favor.

Mrs. Louella Myers of Akron was a special guest.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Clyde Hall of Denver street, Thursday, December 11, when a Christmas party will be featured.

Hi and Ex-Hi Dance.

The Hi and Ex-Hi dancing party held in the I. O. O. F lodge rooms, West Sixth street, last evening, was a decided success. Music was furnished by the Ernest Sturgis orchestra.

The committee in charge included Ray McDevitt and James Larkins. Guests from Salem, Lisbon and other nearby cities were present as well as the following college students: Miss Mary Weaver of Oberlin University; Francis Erwin, Ralph Scraggs, Reid Calcott and Harold Nelson of the University of Pittsburgh; Earl Reese Paul Hamilton and John McBane, of Bethany; Norman Hamilton of West Liberty University; Percy Wyant of Franklin-Marshall preparatories school; Robert Vodrey of Bellefontaine preparatory school; Charles Turne r of Kiski college; Charles Walsh Jr., of Notre Dame University, and Carroll Lynch of Georgetown University.

Here's Quick and Lasting Relief from

PILES

For years the generally accepted treatment for Hemorrhoids or Piles has been by the insertion of many so-called antiseptics and astringents into the rectum. Such treatments, while they in many cases gave relief, never reahed or ated on the cause of the trouble and this was also true of surgical operations, for the surgeon's knife did not cure but simply removed the formation after development.

You've got to attack the real cause of the Piles and not the Piles themselves and you've got to do it from a constitutional standpoint and this is just what the Hamadala treatment does. It attacks the cause and not the formation and the cause once removed, all those painful, congested, knotted and strangulated blood vessels are restored to their normal function and blind, bleeding or protruding piles become a thing of the past.

The Hamadala treatment can now be obtained at C. G. Anderson's, J. D. Holloway's and all good druggists under a rigid guarantee. Out of town sufferers can obtain by mail. Price $1.00. The Hamadala Co., Box 445, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Louella Myers of Akron was a special guest.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Clyde Hall of Denver street, Thursday, December 11, when a Christmas party will be featured.

New Way to Quickly Stop Worst Cough

A remarkable new and simple method for treating a cough gives relief with the first doses and usually breaks a severe cough in 24 hours.

The treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. People have been astonished how quickly the cough is stopped with this new treatment, and the whole cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. It is excellent for children as well as grownups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

DIVORCE SUITS BEFORE COURT

Judges Turnbaugh and Moore Dispose of Many Cases.

The divroce case of Maude M. Pollock against her husandu Floyd E. Pollock, both of East Liverpool, continued for over six hours before Judge Charles S. Turnbaugh in common pleas court Wednesday, and at the close of the testimony the court reserved its decision until later in the week.

Not in months has a divorce case occupied such long time with the court. The plaintiff was represented by George E. Davidson of the law firm of Lones, Hill & Davidson, while Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes was in charge of the defense.

Alimony in the sum of $750 was granted Mrs. Della Groner against Frank Groner of Columbiana, and the court dismissed her petition for divorce and gave Groner a deeree on his cross petition. The matter of alimony was agreed upon out of court.

Soon after the divorce action was entered, Mrs. Groner, who was a former resident of Youngstown removed to Lisbon, and has been residing on East Lincoln Way. Attorney H. W. Hammond of Columbiana represented Mrs. Groner, while Billingsley and Moore represented the defendant.

The cross petition of the defendant in the divorce action filed by Leonard W. Stratton against Rhoda Stratton has been dismissed by Judge James G. Moore on her motion, and earlier in the proceedings the plaintiff was given permission to withdrew his petition from the flies. The costs in this case are to be paid by the plaintiff.

On statutory grounds, a decree has been granted by Judge Moore in the action filed by Logan Coppock, thru his counsel, Billingsley & Moore of Lisbon against his wife Bertha Coppock. The household goods in question in this action have also been awarded the plaintiff.

For failure to prosecute the divorce action which was filed by Attorney W. S. Folks Aug. 27, 1923 in behalf of his client, Nick Micelotta against his wife Carmele Micelotta, the case has been dismissed from the court docket.

There has also been lack of prosecution in the case of Lawrence A. Veon, as guardian in the marriage annullment action filed by Attorney E. L. Lyon of East Palestine against Charles D. Saltsman, et al., and this has been dismissed on the motion of the plaintiff.

On the grounds of three years wilful absence, Maude White, represented by Attorney H. W. Hammond of Columbiana, has been granted a divorce from her husband Joseph White. The custody of four children have been awarded Mrs. White.

After being granted a divorce from her husband, John Kester, on the grounds of three years wilful absence Mrs. Harriett M. Kester has also been restored to her maiden name, that of Harriett M. Lathan. She was represented in this cause by Attorney Everett L. Lyon of East Palestine.

Myrtle Isett has been absent from her husband for over three years, and it is on this ground that John D. Isett, through his counsel, James E. Davis of East Liverpool secured his decree of divorce.

FORMER LOCAL LAD DIES OF SMALLPOX

Smallpox is given as the cause of the death at Struthers of Dale, aged 6 years, son of Rev. and Mrs. Paul E. Carson, who recently removed to Struthers from Lisbon, where Mr. Carson was pastor of the Lisbon United Presbyterian church. The child contracted the sickness while attending school. He was sick one week.

There has been considerable smallpox reported in and about the Youngstown and Struthers district, and many deaths have resulted. In order to prevent the spread of smallpox in this county, the state board of health has instructed all county health commissioners to urge upon boards of education to insist that school children be vaccinated.

All mines at West Point are idle, with no prospects for resumption at an early date.

DIVORCE SUITS BEFORE COURT

Judges Turnbaugh and Moore Dispose of Many Cases.

The divroce case of Maude M. Pollock against her husandu Floyd E. Pollock, both of East Liverpool, continued for over six hours before Judge Charles S. Turnbaugh in common pleas court Wednesday, and at the close of the testimony the court reserved its decision until later in the week.

Not in months has a divorce case occupied such long time with the court. The plaintiff was represented by George E. Davidson of the law firm of Lones, Hill & Davidson, while Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes was in charge of the defense.

Alimony in the sum of $750 was granted Mrs. Della Groner against Frank Groner of Columbiana, and the court dismissed her petition for divorce and gave Groner a deeree on his cross petition. The matter of alimony was agreed upon out of court.

Soon after the divorce action was entered, Mrs. Groner, who was a former resident of Youngstown removed to Lisbon, and has been residing on East Lincoln Way. Attorney H. W. Hammond of Columbiana represented Mrs. Groner, while Billingsley and Moore represented the defendant.

The cross petition of the defendant in the divorce action filed by Leonard W. Stratton against Rhoda Stratton has been dismissed by Judge James G. Moore on her motion, and earlier in the proceedings the plaintiff was given permission to withdrew his petition from the flies. The costs in this case are to be paid by the plaintiff.

On statutory grounds, a decree has been granted by Judge Moore in the action filed by Logan Coppock, thru, his counsel, Billingsley & Moore of Lisbon against his wife Bertha Coppock. The household goods in question in this action have also been awarded the plaintiff.

For failure to prosecute the divorce action which was filed by Attorney W. S. Folks Aug. 27, 1923 in behalf of his client, Nick Micelotta, against his wife Carmele Micelotta, the case has been dismissed from the court docket.

There has also been lack of prosecution in the case of Lawrence A. Veon, as guardian in the marriage annullment action filed by Attorney E. L. Lyon of East Palestine against Charles D. Saltsman, et .al., and this has been dismissed on the motion of the plaintiff.

On the grounds of three years wilful absence, Maude White, represented by Attorney H. W. Hammond of Columbiana, has been granted a divorce from her husband Joseph White. The custody of four children have been awarded Mrs. White.

After being granted a divorce from her husband, John Kester, on the grounds of three years wilful absence Mrs. Harriett M. Kester has also been restored to her maiden name, that of Harriett M. Lathan. She was represented in this cause by Attorney Everett L. Lyon of East Palestine.

Myrtle Iseit has been absent from her husband for over three years, and it is on this ground that John D. Iseit, through his counsel, James E. Davis of East Liverpool secured his decree of divorce.

DR. BIEDERWOLF'S THURSDAY SERMON ON 'THE DANCE'

The sermon of Evangelist W. E. Biederwolf Thursday evening was as follows:

This is not a pleasant task I am to perform. How certain do I wish there were no occasion for an address such as I am now going to deliver. I assure you, therefore, it is more from necessity than from choice that I am to speak upon the subject announced for this service. That subject is the theme of "The Dance and the Christian Relation To It." I recognize the fact in speaking upon the dance I am dealing with what is beyond question one of the greatest sources of amusement among the American people and I know that your prejudices are very apt to be very strong one way or the other.

I am not going to argue with you. I am simply going to tell you some things I know to be true and trust to your own enlightened Christian judgment, your own high sense of honor and your own fine sense of distinction between what is delicate and refined and modest and what is indelicate and coarse and suggestive to decide for yourself what your future position concerning these things is to be regardless of what others may think or say.

I cannot understand how any right thinking person can possibly disagree with me in the position which the facts I am about to set forth have constrained me to take. And yet I dare hardly hope that every one will acknowledge as much because I know how strong your prejudizes are. Some of you have come here tonight and have said to yourself and doubtless to others, "I'd like to see the preacher convince me that this thing is wrong." Well, we won't, for you know that little couplet, "A man convinced against his own will is of the same opinion still," but if any number or even one shall this day be true to his or her better self and the Spirit of God and begin to do the will of God, I shall speak to you at this time.

The Lower for Higher.

In the very beginning I wish to lay down two great principles as a foundation upon which to build:

First — The principle of sacrifice must be put into practice in every life that hopes to be highly successful.

And if your religion is not a religion of sacrifice, a religion that sacrifices the lower for the higher, it is not the religion of Jesus Christ.

Second—The particular thing we are called upon to sacrifice depends very much upon our position—not our position in the church but our position in the world. The teaching of the New Testament will not for one moment admit that certain things are perfectly innocent for you because you are simply a church member, but sinful for me because I am a preacher. I have the same right before God to do what another Christian does and what is wrong for a preacher is wrong for any kind of a Christian. And I have an idea that this whole question would not wait long for a solution and the church would become suddenly pure if its members allowed themselves only the indulgences to which you would be glad to see your pastor give himself; and I am equally sure that if you knew your pastor to be a wine drinking, card-playing, theater-going, dancing-man, you would have little confidence in his preaching and prefer some other type of minister to be with you in sickness and most of all when you are dying.

The Inevitable Harvest.

Now, there must be a difference between a person who is not a Christian and one who is. There are other things, which the world may allow itself with clear conscience, but which we, because we are Christians, ought not to do. I do not know what Jesus meant when he said, "What do ye more than others?" unless He meant something like what I have just mentioned.

"What do ye more than others," Alas! there is so often too little difference between the man who professes to be a Christian and the man who does not, if one must judge by the life that is lived; and if there is no difference, if there are not some things which the Christian must forego, then what a miserable farce all our preaching and all our profession really is!

Let it be understood therefore that I am speaking more especially to those who profess to be Christians.

Now what shall I say respecting the indulgence of the dance? I speak of course of the round dance; the dance which Byron calls "the endearing, seductive waltz." Human nature is such that we can be none too careful, but it is the dance as carried on in present-day fashionable society that I am now about to discuss and not the old-time minuet and the stately cotillion or not undignified Virginia reel. But human blood is all too warm for that and the square dance is now only tolerated for a few moments at the beginning as a sop to public opinion for the abandon that comes with the latter hours of the night's indulgence.

There are two things I want to say in passing.

Hard to Win.

First—The hardest young man and especially young woman in the world to win for Christ is the one who is devoted to the dance. In my work as an evangelist I have had scores upon scores say to me, "If I must quit dancing I will not become a Christian," and this is usually said when not a word had been said about the dance. It must be the prompting of a guilty conscience. If the fascination of the dance is so terrible as to cause you to choose it in preference to Christ and the church, that alone ought to stamp it as a great enemy to moral and spiritual beauty.

Second—For every professing Christian who has anything to say in defense of the dance there can be found an unconverted person who makes no pretense at being religious who will say that if they become a Christian they would expect to give up that form of indulgence. I wonder why this is? I wonder if it is because, as Gail Hamilton said, "The very poise of the parties suggests impurity." I wonder if it is because, as broad and liberal-minded Horace Bushnell said, it is one of "the contrived possibilities of license." I wonder if it is, as Mrs. General T. Sherman said, after reading "The Dance of Death," that "women of virtue and self-respect who know the contents of that volume would blush to have the dance named to them;" and if there is any truth in these statements or in a thousand others like them from men and women of all kinds and from every rank in life, I wonder if it is possible that people who make no pretense at being religious where God's own professional children can see nothing but innocent and harmless pleasure? Or I wonder if these people of the world are more honest than some of us who will not admit the truth because forsooth it would rob us of an excite-

If there is any truth at all in what has been suggested, the chief indictment of the dance is at once before us, and that is, namely, that the dance has its basis on the passions of human nature.

Everything that follows ought to furnish conclusive proof of this statement:

First — The mingling of the sexes

Wished He Could Stop Eating

Popular Citizen Hated Meal Time, His Stomach Was So Upset Afterward—Took "DRECO" for Relief and Found That It Also Conquered Constipation and Strengthened His Kidneys.

"I suffered so from indigestion after eating, felt so dull and uncomfortable from gas, that I often let mealtime go by and even hated the smell of food," writes Mr. John W. Darst, 150 Paris avenue, Akron, Ohio, 76 years old.

Mr. Jonn W. Darst

"I heard of Dreco and bought some and it helped me from the first and now I have an appetite like a football player and nothing, even cabbage and fried meats, seems to disagree with me. I had been getting up several times each night to relieve my kidneys, but I found that Dreco soon made this unnecessary. It also regulated my bowels so that they now move nicely several times a day."

When your system is rundown and weak and you begin to suffer from stomach disorders, constipation, headaches, nervousness, dizzy spells, rheumatism, back pains or feel sluggish and tired, don't take a narcotic that deadens the pain momentarily or a stimulant that braces you up for a time. That brings only temporary relief.

Try Dreco—it gets at the root of your troubles and by removing the cause allays your suffering permanently. All good druggists sell it and it is being specially introduced by Mathews Cut Rate Medicine Store.

DR. BIEDERWOLF'S THURSDAY SERMON ON 'THE DANCE'

The sermon of Evangelist W. E. Biederwolf Thursday evening was as follows:

This is not a pleasant task I am to perform. How certain do I wish there were no occasion for an address such as I am now going to deliver. I assure you, therefore, it is more from necessity than from choice that I am to speak upon the subject announced for this service. That subject is the theme of "The Dance and the Christian Relation To It." I recognize the fact in speaking upon the dance I am dealing with what is beyond question one of the greatest sources of amusement among the American people and I know that your prejudices are very apt to be very strong one way or the other.

I am not going to argue with you. I am simply going to tell you some things I know to be true and trust to your own enlightened Christian judgment, your own high sense of honor and your own fine sense of distinction between what is delicate and refined and modest and what is indelicate and coarse and suggestive to decide for yourself what your future position concerning these things is to be regardless of what others may think or say.

I cannot understand how any right thinking person can possibly disagree with me in the position which the facts I am about to set forth have constrained me to take. And yet I dare hardly hope that every one will acknowledge as much because I know how strong your prejudizes are. Some of you have come here tonight and have said to yourself and doubtless to others, "I'd like to see the preacher convince me that this thing is wrong." Well, we won't, for you know that little couplet, "A man convinced against his own will is of the same opinion still," but if any number or even one shall this day be true to his or her better self and the Spirit of God and begin to do the will of God, I shall speak to you at this time.

The Lower for Higher.

In the very beginning I wish to lay down two great principles as a foundation upon which to build:

First — The principle of sacrifice must be put into practice in every life that hopes to be highly successful.

And if your religion is not a religion of sacrifice, a religion that sacrifices the lower for the higher, it is not the religion of Jesus Christ.

Second—The particular thing we are called upon to sacrifice depends very much upon our position—not our position in the church but our position in the world. The teaching of the New Testament will not for one moment admit that certain things are perfectly innocent for you because you are simply a church member, but sinful for me because I am a preacher. I have the same right before God to do what another Christian does and what is wrong for a preacher is wrong for any kind of a Christian. And I have an idea that this whole question would not wait long for a solution and the church would become suddenly pure if its members allowed themselves only the indulgences to which you would be glad to see your pastor give himself; and I am equally sure that if you knew your pastor to be a wine drinking, card-playing, theater-going, dancing-man, you would have little confidence in his preaching and prefer some other type of minister to be with you in sickness and most of all when you are dying.

The Inevitable Harvest.

Now, there must be a difference between a person who is not a Christian and one who is. There are other things, which the world may allow itself with clear conscience, but which we, because we are Christians, ought not to do. I do not know what Jesus meant when he said, "What do ye more than others?" unless He meant something like what I have just mentioned.

"What do ye more than others," Alas! there is so often too little difference between the man who professes to be a Christian and the man who does not, if one must judge by the life that is lived; and if there is no difference, if there are not some things which the Christian must forego, then what a miserable farce all our preaching and all our profession really is!

Let it be understood therefore that I am speaking more especially to those who profess to be Christians.

Now what shall I say respecting the indulgence of the dance? I speak of course of the round dance; the dance which Byron calls "the endearing, seductive waltz." Human nature is such that we can be none too careful, but it is the dance as carried on in present-day fashionable society that I am now about to discuss and not the old-time minuet and the stately cotillion or not undignified Virginia reel. But human blood is all too warm for that and the square dance is now only tolerated for a few moments at the beginning as a sop to public opinion for the abandon that comes with the latter hours of the night's indulgence.

in dancing originated in Greece among men of contaminated morals and women of loose questionable character. There are no square dances in the brothels and what is done there with the avowed and expressed purpose of exciting the sensual nature to you think you can indulge without any tendency whatever in that direction?

Second — There is little or no delight in the dance without the opposite sex. The man who dances only with his wife and the girl who dances only with her brother gets tired quicker and goes home earliest. The dance is the only indulgence that requires the two sexes to make it tolerable. Men play cards alone and women do and engage in all other amusements all alone ... the pleasure is often heightened by the absence of the opposite sex, but what club or society ever gave a ball to those of its own sex only?

The Dancers' Testimony.

Third—The testimony of those who have danced is worthy of somethings. A man came to me recently and said, "I wish you would pray for a friend of mine. He's a splendid fellow. I've just had a good talk with him. He's been married only a few months and he told me that a few nights ago his young wife asked him to go to the dance, and he said, "Mabel, I'm married now, and don't ask me to go to the dance." A man whose thoughts are unholy is none the less false. Some young men are quite free with their lips. Not all young men are thus guilty, thank God, and the things that have been in their minds never find expression in their words, but young woman, if you could hear the remarks of some of these young men or know the thoughts begotten at least in their minds by the dance a blush of shame would mantle your cheek to think that you had ever given yourself to their embrace.

Fourth—If the dance did not have its basis in the passions, such a man as Lord Byron, being the man that he was, could never have written about is as he did. Women, you are pure and noble and chaste, but how could you give yourself to the dance after reading the ode of "The Waltz" by the author of Don Juan is a hard thing for a pure minded man to understand.

Since these things are facts and not speculation there can be no longer any doubt as to why the dance is wrong. I but recently laid down a book containing ten indictments against the modern dance, but because human nature is what it is, any one who understands it at all can see without a moment's reflection that the chief indictment against the dance is that in its nature, in its tendency and in its results it is dangerous to social purity, and that all other reasons for condemning it dwindle away into insignificance in comparison with this.

Facts of Dance.

It ought not to take any facts or figures to prove this. Here are the dancers, locked, you will allow me to say, at least partially, in each other's embrace, moving as one body across the floor, the men gazing upon half-concealed charms of his partner, blowing his warm breath upon her exposed arms and breast, that almost magic and ungovernable personal electricity darting between their meeting fingers, their blood heated and quickened at every step until the heat of one body passes into the other. Do you mean to say that a man can give himself to such a thing like that hour after hour and not be in danger of having the pure white of this soul sullied by that which is unchaste and unclean? A man is not made of putty or marble. He is made as all men are made and these quivering bundles of nerve and passion can well afford to get along without an environment, the tendency of which is in the direction just noted. Granting that none but the purest-minded men ever dance, no man's mind is thought proof, and any indulgence which may cause man to fling away or lose the eternal jewel of chaste thought and its sequel proves bestial and degrading, is hardly a thing for a Christian to defend. Woman, you may not understand this; but man you understand it all and you know that it is all true.

Professional Testimony.

No further proof ought to be required. Enough has already been given, but,

First—I can prove it by the testimony of dancing masters. At their recent convention in New York City steps were taken to modify the form

Diseases traced to constipation are many ---get permanent relief with Kellogg's Bran

Why does constipation breed other diseases? Because it floods your system with dangerous poisons. And the longer you suffer, the more poisons accumulate. That is why constipation should be relieved at once.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. They know it brings results because it is ALL bran. And only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective in relieving constipation.

ALL bran — Kellogg's — sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It acts as nature acts. It makes the intestine function naturally and regularly. If eaten regularly, it will bring permanent relief in the most chronic cases of constipation—is guaranteed to do so or your grocer returns your money.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will like the wonderful Kellogg flavor—so crisp and nut-like—so different from ordinary brans, which are most unpalatable.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. And by all means try it in the recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Perfect home dyeing and tinting is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes. Just dip in cold water to tint soft, delicate shades, or boil to dye rich, permanent colors. Each 15-cent package contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint lingerie, silks, ribbons, skirts, waists, dresses, coats, stockings, sweaters, draperies, coverings, hangings, everything new.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—and tell your druggist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods. (adv)

of the present tendency towards that which is impure. What the dancing masters themselves acknowledged to be dangerous to pure thought and social propriety it remains for the professed Christian woman of the church to, defend as prefectly innocent and harmless amusement. Has it come to this?

Second—I can prove it out of my own experience. I have God to thank for a heaven-sent conscience on social purity even before I became a Christian, but since a young man of 19 I have known the Christ and I have had not only a new inspiration but a new strength in trying to fulfill the command, "Keep thyself pure." I would not think or do a thing of shame, not because of its effect upon myself, either mentally or physically or socially, but because I know it hurts the heart of my Father in heaven who has been so good and kind to me. And yet I know myself as you know yourself, and I say it without shame that the struggle of my life has been just along the line we have been discussing. And I have thought if a young man who had the inspiration of a Christian ideal who knew his Christ and had His help and His strength to keep his mind and his heart, if he could not give himself without harm to these things, what shall be said of the young man who has no such inspiration and who does not know the Christ and is a stranger to His help nad strength and even though he cared to be pure to say nothing about those who are not so concerned.

Young Men's Testimony.

Third—I can prove it out of the experience of others. First, on the testimony of young men. In a western town of some 8,000 population entirely given up to the amusements of this world, a number of the young women came to me during the revival and asked me about the dance. They said they saw no harm in it, and I replied: "Possibly not to you, although there may be, but what about the young men?" "Oh," they said, "we dance with only the nicest young men of the town." And I said, "Who are they?" and they said Harry C. and George R.," and went on to name quite a number of the most splendid young men of the place. Later during my stay I talked with these very same young men. A few of them were inclined to argue a little at first while others were quicked to confess, but every one of these young men, without exception, confessed to me in confidence, for I had become their friend, that although they might have gone through the evening's dance without harm at the time, yet when they went back to their homes and laid themselves down on their beds and lived the night with its scenes and seductions all through again in the mind there came to them, because of it, thoughts and imaginations which no pure-minded, chaste-hearted young man should ever indulge. In another city recently I was asked by the young men themselves for a confidential talk.

About 30 of the best young men were there—high school and business college students, clerks and others. I talked to them of the impure thoughts begotten by the dance and of what these thoughts sometimes led to and I said, "Now, fellows, I've been frank with you and I want you to be just as frank and confidential with me; has this been true of you?" And the hand of every young man in the room went up. Now if these young men know their own life and experience as they certainly must, then, young women, for their sakes, for the sake of the virtue and character of young men in general who are more strongly tempted in certain directions than you are apt to be, you ought, if you are a pure woman, much more a Christian, to think very carefully before you give yourself to an indulgence with them that encourages the things we have mentioned, even though there could be no possible harm to yourselves. You surely do not mean to say that you are in no wise responsible for the virtue of the young men! If you do, in heaven's name let me ask you, "What is your idea of a Christian, anyhow?"

Testimony of Women.

You say, as a young woman, there is no harm to you; I am not so sure of this. I do not care to argue the matter with you, but it is hard to see how young women can engage in any indulgence without the slightest possibility of danger to them, when it does for young men who give themselves to it that which we have just seen to be true.

Secondly, the testimony of the young women of the world proves the position we have taken and emphatically denies the supposition that there is no harm in its indulgence for them. Many a poor lost girl has been heard to cry in a bitter anguish, "Would to God I had never entered a dancing school."

Prof. T. A. Falkner, an ex-dancing master of Los Angeles academy, said to 20 abandoned women with whom he talked personally that while 37 ascribed their fall to various other causes, 163 of them ascribed it to the dancing school and ball room. The police statistics of this and other churches tell the same sad story. I could simply ap-

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes street, Rochester, New York, suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.

Carnahan's pharmacy is my appointed agent in your city. If you live out of town I'll gladly send you free particulars.

of the present tendency towards that which is impure. What the dancing masters themselves acknowledged to be dangerous to pure thought and social propriety it remains for the professed Christian woman of the church to defend as prefectly innocent and harmless amusement. Has it come to this?

Second—I can prove it out of my own experience. I have God to thank for a heaven-sent conscience on social purity even before I became a Christian, but since a young man of 19 I have known the Christ and I have had not only a new inspiration but a new strength in trying to fulfill the command, "Keep thyself pure." I would not think or do a thing of shame, not because of its effect upon myself, either mentally or physically or socially, but because I know it hurts the heart of my Father in heaven who has been so good and kind to me. And yet I know myself as you know yourself, and I say it without shame that the struggle of my life has been just along the line we have been discussing. And I have thought if a young man who had the inspiration of a Christian ideal who knew his Christ and had His help and His strength to keep his mind and his heart, if he could not give himself without harm to these things, what shall be said of the young man who has no such inspiration and who does not know the Christ and is a stranger to His help nad strength and even though he cared to be pure to say nothing about those who are not so concerned.

Young Men's Testimony.

Third—I can prove it out of the experience of others. First, on the testimony of young men. In a western town of some 8,000 population entirely given up to the amusements of this world, a number of the young women came to me during the revival and asked me about the dance. They said they saw no harm in it, and I replied: "Possibly not to you, although there may be, but what about the young men?" "Oh," they said, "we dance with only the nicest young men of the town." And I said, "Who are they?" and they said Harry C. and George R.," and went on to name quite a number of the most splendid young men of the place. Later during my stay I talked with these very same young men. A few of them were inclined to argue a little at first while others were quicked to confess, but every one of these young men, without exception, confessed to me in confidence, for I had become their friend, that although they might have gone through the evening's dance without harm at the time, yet when they went back to their homes and laid themselves down on their beds and lived the night with its scenes and seductions all through again in the mind there came to them, because of it, thoughts and imaginations which no pure-minded, chaste-hearted young man should ever indulge. I talked to them of the impure thoughts begotten by the dance and of what these thoughts sometimes led to and I said, "Now, fellows, I've been frank with you and I want you to be just as frank and confidential with me; has this been true of you?" And the hand of every young man in the room went up. Now if these young men know their own life and experience as they certainly must, then, young women, for their sakes, for the sake of the virtue and character of young men in general who are more strongly tempted in certain directions than you are apt to be, you ought, if you are a pure woman, much more a Christian, to think very carefully before you give yourself to an indulgence with them that encourages the things we have mentioned, even though there could be no possible harm to yourselves. You surely do not mean to say that you are in no wise responsible for the virtue of the young men! If you do, in heaven's name let me ask you, "What is your idea of a Christian, anyhow?"

Testimony of Women.

You say, as a young woman, there is no harm to you; I am not so sure of this. I do not care to argue the matter with you, but it is hard to see how young women can engage in any indulgence without the slightest possibility of danger to them, when it does for young men who give themselves to it that which we have just seen to be true.

THE DOUBLE HOUSE

By Elizabeth Dejeans

Dascome stated that he was on the lake for exactly fifty minutes; that he had watched the time because of the train he must catch. Then his wife said that she wanted to row about by herself for a time, so he brought the boat alongside the lake bank at the upper end of the inlet known as the Dragon's Pool and that he meant to step from the boat to the bank, but the boat backed away and he landed in the water and sank well above his head. He said that it was merely a disagreeable incident and that neither he nor his wife was alarmed; that his hat had floated off and that seemed to amuse his wife. Dascome said that he spent five minutes or so wringing the water from his coat, then that he walked back to his house; that he saw his wife take up the oars and row toward the end of the lake where the driftwood collected.

Dascome was asked by his counsel whether, on the morning of April the fifth, he had received a long distance telephone message. What was the nature of this message?

Dascome answered that he was called to the telephone just as he was starting to go to the hotel to see his wife. That the message was from Herbert Colt, a detective he had sent to Proctorville to locate Bain Atwell, the man who had threatened his life during the Devereux trial. That ever since that experience had had kept a watch on the man's movements, and, on the third of April, Herbert Colt had heard that Atwell had been seen in Proctorville, and he had sent Colt to discover whether the report was true. That Colt's message on the morning of April the fifth was to the effect that Atwell was at a resort near Proctorville, the Fox House. That he told Colt to keep watch on Atwell and that he, Dascome, would come to Proctorville on the seventh and have a talk with him. That they arranged over the telephone that when he arrived in Proctorville on the seventh he would see Colt at the Cates House where Colt was staying. Dascome stated that in no way was Mr. Proctor mentioned; that their conversation was about Atwell only.

Dascome said that the message he had received at 1 o'clock the next day, April the sixth, was also from Herbert Colt, from Proctorville. That Colt said, "'I'm just back from a round of the towns north of here. Atwell has flown from the Fox House and I haven't any clue yet to his whereabouts. What do you want me to do?' I told him, 'Wait for me in Proctorville. I'm taking the afternoon train from here and I'll come to the Cates House and see you as soon as I get in tomorrow morning. Meanwhile sift Proctorville for Atwell, for I don't want a shot in my back.'" Dascome stated that that was their conversation in its entirety.

Regarding the telegram signed "Herbert Colt" which he had received on his return from the lake, Dascome stated that the moment he saw it he had known that it was not from Colt, for, had it been, Colt would have told him of it when he had telephoned; the telegram had been sent at 11 o'clock that morning and he had talked with Colt at 1 o'clock; besides, that Colt always signed his messages "Bert." Dascome said that instantly he had suspected that Atwell had sent him the telegram, most likely a ruse to get him to Proctorville, and he was the more anxious to get to Proctorville and run the man down.

Dascome deposed that prior to his arrival in Proctorville he had had no knowledge whatever of Amos Proctor's illness except the statement in the telegram which he had considered a frame-up. He had not called up Proctor house to inquire whether or not Mr. Proctor was ill, because five minutes at the telephone would have lost him his train and there was no other until the next day. The important thing was to get to Proctorville as soon as possible.

Dascome stated that on his arrival in Proctorville he had not gone to the Cates House to see Herbert Colt because at the station he was told of Mr. Proctor's death, and he had gone straight to Proctor house.

Dascome deposed that he knew nothing whatever about the provisions of Amos Proctor's will until after the will was read; that never, at any time, had Amos Proctor mentioned his will to him or discussed with him what disposal he meant to make of his property. That never, from any source, had he gathered that he would be a beneficiary.

The defense called the lawyer who had drawn Amos Proctor's will, and he deposed that, so far as he knew, John Dascome had not been an advisory. That the will had been drawn in his office, that Mr. Proctor had stated that he wished its contents to be kept secret from his family, and that then the will was placed in the care of the —— Trust company of New York.

The defense established that exhaustive investigations haid failed to show that Elaine Dascome had ever, since her marriage to Dascome, had a bank account, that she had ever given a check in payment of a bill, that she had ever made an investment, or that she had ever rented a safety deposit box; that, in spite of the five hundred a month allowance from her father, apparently she was penniless at the time of her death. The defense then produced the chambermaid whom the Dascomes had taken with them when they went to Crisomby Lakes, and this girl testified that she was in Mrs. Dascome's room at 1 o'clock when Mrs. Dascome came upstairs to put on her wraps before going out on the lake with Mr. Dascome, and that she saw Mrs. Dascome place about her neck the chain to which the leather pouch was attached. Then that Mrs. Dascome stuffed into the pouch a roll of bills and pushed the pouch down beneath her dress; that the pouch was so full that "it made her dress stick out in front." That then Mrs. Dascome took from a drawer a packet of what looked like letters and hid them under her thick knitted cape which she held wrapped about her. All this she saw in the mirror from where she was standing in the bathroom. She had then watched Mrs. Dascome go down to the rowboat where Mr. Dascome was waiting for her, and she had noticed that Mrs. Dascome was holding her cape about her in the same way as when she left the room. The maid identified the water-stained leather pouch and the gold chain which was found on Mrs. Dascome's dead body. Meta Thail had also identified the chain; the pouch she could

By Elizabeth Dejeans

Dascome stated that he was on the lake for exactly fifty minutes; that he had watched the time because of the train he must catch. Then his wife said that she wanted to row about by herself for a time, so he brought the boat alongside the lake bank at the upper end of the inlet known as the Dragon's Pool and that he meant to step from the boat to the bank, but the boat backed away and he landed in the water and sank well above his head. He said that it was merely a disagreeable incident and that neither he nor his wife was alarmed; that his hat had floated off and that seemed to amuse his wife. Dascome said that he spent five minutes or so wringing the water from his coat, then that he walked back to his house; that he saw his wife take up the oars and row toward the end of the lake where the driftwood collected.

Dascome was asked by his counsel whether, on the morning of April the fifth, he had received a long distance telephone message. What was the nature of this message?

Dascome answered that he was called to the telephone just as he was starting to go to the hotel to see his wife. That the message was from Herbelt Colt, a detective he had sent to Proctorville to locate Bain Atwell, the man who had threatened his life during the Devereux trial. That ever since that experience had had kept a watch on the man's movements, and, on the third of April, Herbert Colt had heard that Atwell had been seen in Proctorville, and he had sent Colt to discover whether the report was true. That Colt's message on the morning of April the fifth was to the effect that Atwell was at a resort near Proctorville, the Fox House. That he told Colt to keep watch on Atwell and that he, Dascome, would come to Proctorville on the seventh and have a talk with him. That they arranged over the telephone that when he arrived in Proctorville on the seventh he would see Colt at the Cates House where Colt was staying. Dascome stated that in no way was Mr. Proctor mentioned; that their conversation was about Atwell only.

Dascome said that the message he had received at 1 o'clock the next day, April the sixth, was also from Herbert Colt, from Proctorville. That Colt said, "'I'm just back from a round of the towns north of here. Atwell has flown from the Fox House and I haven't any clue yet to his whereabouts. What do you want me to do?' I told him, 'Wait for me in Proctorville. I'm taking the afternoon train from here and I'll come to the Cates House and see you as soon as I get in tomorrow morning. Meanwhile sift Proctorville for Atwell, for I don't want a shot in my back.'" Dascome stated that that was their conversation in its entirety.

Regarding the telegram signed "Herbert Colt" which he had received on his return from the lake, Dascome stated that the moment he saw it he had known that it was not from Colt, for, had it been, Colt would have told him of it when he had telephoned; the telegram had been sent at 11 o'clock that morning and he had talked with Colt at 1 o'clock; besides, that Colt always signed his messages "Bert." Dascome said that instantly he had suspected that Atwell had sent him the telegram, most likely a ruse to get him to Proctorville, and he was the more anxious to get to Proctorville and run the man down.

Dascome deposed that prior to his arrival in Proctorville he had had no knowledge whatever of Amos Proctor's illness except the statement in the telegram which he had considered a frame-up. He had not called up Proctor house to inquire whether or not Mr. Proctor was ill, because five minutes at the telephone would have lost him his train and there was no other until the next day. The important thing was to get to Proctorville as soon as possible.

Dascome stated that on his arrival in Proctorville he had not gone to the Cates House to see Herbert Colt because at the station he was told of Mr. Proctor's death, and he had gone straight to Proctor house.

Dascome deposed that he knew nothing whatever about the provisions of Amos Proctor's will until after the will was read; that never, at any time, had Amos Proctor mentioned his will to him or discussed with him what disposal he meant to make of his property. That never, from any source, had he gathered that he would be a beneficiary.

The defense called the lawyer who had drawn Amos Proctor's will, and he deposed that, so far as he knew, John Dascome had not been an advisory. That the will had been drawn in his office, that Mr. Proctor had stated that he wished its contents to be kept secret from his family, and that then the will was placed in the care of the —— Trust company of New York.

The defense established that exhaustive investigations haid failed to show that Elaine Dascome had ever, since her marriage to Dascome, had a bank account, that she had ever given a check in payment of a bill, that she had ever made an investment, or that she had ever rented a safety deposit box; that, in spite of the five hundred a month allowance from her father, apparently she was penniless at the time of her death. The defense then produced the chambermaid whom the Dascomes had taken with them when they went to Crisomby Lakes, and this girl testified that she was in Mrs. Dascome's room at 1 o'clock when Mrs. Dascome came upstairs to put on her wraps before going out on the lake with Mr. Dascome, and that she saw Mrs. Dascome place about her neck the chain to which the leather pouch was attached. Then that Mrs. Dascome stuffed into the pouch a roll of bills and pushed the pouch down beneath her dress; that the pouch was so full that "it made her dress stick out in front." That then Mrs. Dascome took from a drawer a packet of what looked like letters and hid them under her thick knitted cape which she held wrapped about her. All this she saw in the mirror from where she was standing in the bathroom. She had then watched Mrs. Dascome go down to the rowboat where Mr. Dascome was waiting for her, and she had noticed that Mrs. Dascome was holding her cape about her in the same way as when she left the room. The maid identified the water-stained leather pouch and the gold chain which was found on Mrs. Dascome's dead body. Meta Thall had also identified the chain; the pouch she could pall you with what I myself know to be true.

Again, the Roman Catholic Confessional reveals some strong evidence just at this point. A Catholic priest in defending the confessional had come just to this point when he said: "Another argument for the confessional is that we at least have the advantage of knowing when our people fall, where they fall and how they fall and we have found that almost every lapse of female virtue in our community is traceable to the round dance."

You say you don't believe it. Listen. The facts are all open to investigation and certainly no one with a true heart would think of denying them without investigation for themselves.

What Church Says.

You may repeat again, young woman, that it never has and never can do you any harm, and I repeat again that I will not argue the question with you, but I do ask, altogether apart from your Christian profession, altogether apart from what would be pleasing to Him who pleased not Himself, I do ask, have you no womanly interest in womankind?

And now because all these things are true, for you must bear me witness that this address has not been an abuse but plain recital of facts—because these things are true, could any one be astonished if it should be said that this form of indulgence is inconsistent with the Christian's vows, that solemn vow which says, "Renouncing the world, the flesh and the devil, I take God the Father to be my Father, Jesus the Christ to be my Savior and the Holy Spirit to be my Sanctifier. I take the word of God to by my rule of faith and patience, and the people of God to be my people, and I give myself, soul and body, time and talents, powers and possessions to the service of the Lord. I do this intelligently, deliberately, sincerely, unreservedly, freely and forever." Could anything be more solemn: And because the Christian's vow is what it is and the dance is what it is could any one be surprised to hear that the dance is forbidden by the church?

If anyone, therefore, should ask me to give a single reason why a church member should not dance I would simply say "Because your church is against it and says you must not." But you say, "Do all churches take this stand?" Yes, all of them! The majority of them through their official utterances, while in the few which are independent in government and consequently have no such official deliveries, you will find the attitude of its leaders quite as pronounced against this indulgence as that of the others.

Dangerous Amusements.

Let us begin with the Roman Catholic, the oldest of all. Assembled in Plenary Council at Baltimore the archbishops put their church on record in the following words:

"In this connection we consider it to be our duty to warn our people against those fashionable dances which as at present carried on, are revolting to every feeling of delicacy and propriety and are fraught with the greatest danger to morals."

Episcopalian Objections.

Take the Episcopalian church which is so often charged with being lax concerning this question, but this is true only as it is true of other churches where they are not deeply concerned about bringing the lost to Jesus! But listen! Bishop Hopkins of that church, had this to say: "Dancing is chargeable with waste of time, the indulgence of personal vanity, and the premature incitement of the passions, and no ingenuity can make it consistent with the covenant of baptism." Bishop Meade of Virginia and Bishop McIlvaine of Ohio have said the same thing, while Bishop Coxe, whose name has become a household word in the Episcopalian church, says the dance is lascivious and warns those who persist in it "that they presume not to come to the holy table."

The Baptist church in her associations is unsparing in her denunciation of this indulgence.

The General Association of the Congregational church of the State of Iowa passed the following resolution but a few years ago: "Resolved, that in the opinion of this association the practice by dancing members of our churches is inconsistent with the profession of religion and ought to be made a subject of discipline."

While leaving the matter of discipline to each church the Presbyterian denomination in its general assembly has said: "We regard the practice of promiscuous social dancing by church members as a mournful inconsistency and the giving of such parties for such dancing, on the part of the heads of families, as tending to compromise their religious profession; and the sending of children by Christian parents to the danc-

Other Church Viewpoints.

Among their other declarances:

The Church of Christ, the Disciple church, is as pronounced as anyone of its recognized authorities has said: "Dancing is offensive, not to the ignorant, prejudized and weak people, but to the best informed, the most pious and devout. If there were nothing else against it, that would stamp it with the seal of condemnation."

In the Methodist book of discipline, paragraph 248, under the head of "Imprudent and Unchristian Conduct," we find that mention is made of attending dancing parties, patronizing dancing schools, and it is there stated that private reproof shall first be given by the pastor or leader, but that upon a second offense the pastor or leader shall take with him one or two discreet members of the church; while upon a third offense, if there be no sign of real humiliation the guilty one shall be expelled.

"Well," you say, "I don't care what thing anyhow." And is this your idea my church says; I'm going to do this of a true church member and a consistent Christian? You, who stood at the sacred altar and before God, before the saints of earth and high heaven, made your vow not only to renounce the world but be obedient to the will of your church? It is possible that you perjured your soul or has it come to this, that you no longer care?

But we are not quite done. We have gathered testimony from every quarter but one. Let us not forget the word of our God.

Let us then see what God's word says about questionable things. He says in plain and unmistakable language that for the Christian they are wrong.

Paul's Distinction.

Paul in speaking on questionable things says in 1 Cor. 6:12, "All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient," and in telling us why things which are inexpedient just because they are questionable, are wrong for the Christian he makes himself very plain; indeed so plain that no one who wants the truth can miss it. He explains it first from the standpoint of a man's God, and then from the standpoint of a man's neighbor, and then from the standpoint of the man himself.

First—As concerns God. He says they are wrong because of the danger of misrepresenting Him. By doing these things we sanction a lower tone of Christianity than His approval warrants. In 1 Cor. 10:31, Paul says, "Whether ye eat or drink or whatever ye do, do all to the glory of God." If you conscientiously kneel down and ask Go to go with you, it may be right for you to go, if no other question is involved, but unless in that thing to which you give yourself the Holy Spirit can glorify Jesus it is wrong for you to indulge. In any undertaking I should want to know, "Will this please God.?"

Calling upon one of his parishioners, a certain pastor inquired concerning the daughter who was away at college, and the mother said: "I was just reading a letter from her as you came in; part of it will interest you." And she read a part of the letter where the daughter was telling the mother of a dance that was to be given by her class; most of her friends were going and she wanted to go herself very much indeed, but she knew her mother did not approve of it and for her sake sh ewas going to stay away. "Well," remarked the pastor, "that's very beautiful of her indeed; you must love her very much." "Love her!" replied the mother, as a tear came into her eye, "I wish she were here now, that I might put my arms around her and tell her how much I love her." In some such way as that I would like God to feel toward me, and I am sure He will if I am trying in all things to walk "worthy of the Lord until all pleasing."

Second — Then Paul states the question from the standpoint of the man's neighbor. In 1 Cor. 8:9, he says such things ought not to be done "lest by any means my liberty becomes a stumbling block to them that are weak." We all know what he means, and in 1 Cor. 8:13, he says: "If meat makes my brother to offend I will eat no meat while the world stands." Although I might engage in this thing without any harm to myself, I am furnishing by my example what others take as their justification for doing it, but who are are so discering or self-controlled as I, and while I may be spared they may be injured and fall and set their feet in the way that leads to ruin.

Another's Danger.

Two little boys, one leading his smaller sister, were going through the woods. They came to a tree that had fallen across the creek and formed a natural bridge. The first little fellow bounded over and turning said, "Come on, it's easy." But the other gripped his little sister's hand a little tighter and shrank back, saying: "I could, but she might fall." And I say to you that that little fellow had more of the Spirit of Jesus Christ in him than many members of many churches who will not deny themselves some pet indulgence for the sake of some one weaker than themselves.

Paul's Reason Given.

Third—And then Paul states the matter from the standopint of the man himself.

(a) In 1 Cor. 6:42, he says such things are inexpedient, "lest I be brought under their power." If these things or any other things have taken such strong hold upon you as to cause you to prefer them to the approval of God or the honor of Christ; if you are at the place where many a young member of the church has been when they have said, "If these things are inconsistent with my being a member of the church, I shall cling to them nevertheless." then for you these things are an evil in your life.

(b- And in 1 Cor. 10:23; he says they are inexpedient "because they do not edify." They hinder growth and fill the church with barren, fruitless lives. A prominent Christian worker once said, "I never know a Christian that began to dance who was not soon missed out of the prayer meeting." Having loved this present world Demas-like they soon forsake the things of God. It seems there is an incompatibility between the two which experience proves will not abide each other.

And then, say what we will, the lovely characters of this world, in

RHEUMATISM

A REMARKABLE HOME TREATMENT GIVEN BY ONE WHO HAD IT.

In the year of 1893, I was attacked by Muscular and Subacute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know, for over three years... I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely, and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bed-ridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and subacute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST BAKING POWDER

"My bakings used to be a matter of 'hit or miss' — sometimes they were successful; then again a total failure, no matter how hard I tried. But that was before a friend persuaded me to try Calumet. Now I know what the result will be—what to expect every time — perfectly raised, uniformly baked foods. Bake day is really a delight."

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans, instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

Baking Powder plays an important part in the success or failure of your baking. The great American housewives all realize this. They have found by experience that a better leavener is not, and cannot be made—that for nutritious and wholesome foods it has no equal.

Calumet is made in the World's largest baking powder factories; human hands never touch it.

ing school as a sad error in family discipline."

Other Church Viewpoints.

Among their other declarances:

The Church of Christ, the Disciple church, is as pronounced as anyone of its recognized authorities has said: "Dancing is offensive, not to the ignorant, prejudized and weak people, but to the best informed, the most pious and devout. If there were nothing else against it, that would stamp it with the seal of condemnation."

In the Methodist book of discipline, paragraph 248, under the head of "Imprudent and Unchristian Conduct," we find that mention is made of attending dancing parties, patronizing dancing schools, and it is there stated that private reproof shall first be given by the pastor or leader, but that upon a second offense the pastor or leader shall take with him one or two discreet members of the church; while upon a third offense, if there be no sign of real humiliation the guilty one shall be expelled.

"Well," you say, "I don't care what thing anyhow." And is this your idea my church says; I'm going to do this of a true church member and a consistent Christian? You, who stood at the sacred altar and before God, before the saints of earth and high heaven, made your vow not only to renounce the world but be obedient to the will of your church? It is possible that you perjured your soul or has it come to this, that you no longer care?

But we are not quite done. We have gathered testimony from every quarter but one. Let us not forget the word of our God.

Let us then see what God's word says about questionable things. He says in plain and unmistakable language that for the Christian they are wrong.

Paul's Distinction.

Paul in speaking on questionable things says in 1 Cor. 6:12, "All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient," and in telling us why things which are inexpedient just because they are questionable, are wrong for the Christian he makes himself very plain; indeed so plain that no one who wants the truth can miss it. He explains it first from the standpoint of a man's God, and then from the standpoint of a man's neighbor, and then from the standpoint of the man himself.

First—As concerns God. He says they are wrong because of the danger of misrepresenting Him. By doing these things we sanction a lower tone of Christianity than His approval warrants. In 1 Cor. 10:31, Paul says, "Whether ye eat or drink or whatever ye do, do all to the glory of God." If you conscientiously kneel down and ask Go to go with you, it may be right for you to go, if no other question is involved, but unless in that thing to which you give yourself the Holy Spirit can glorify Jesus it is wrong for you to indulge. In any undertaking I should want to know, "Will this please God.?"

Calling upon one of his parishioners, a certain pastor inquired concerning the daughter who was away at college, and the mother said: "I was just reading a letter from her as you came in; part of it will interest you." And she read a part of the letter where the daughter was telling the mother of a dance that was to be given by her class; most of her friends were going and she wanted to go herself very much indeed, but she knew her mother did not approve of it and for her sake sh ewas going to stay away. "Well," remarked the pastor, "that's very beautiful of her indeed; you must love her very much." "Love her!" replied the mother, as a tear came into her eye, "I wish she were here now, that I might put my arms around her and tell her how much I love her." In some such way as that I would like God to feel toward me, and I am sure He will if I am trying in all things to walk "worthy of the Lord until all pleasing."

Second — Then Paul states the question from the standpoint of the man's neighbor. In 1 Cor. 8:9, he says such things ought not to be done "lest by any means my liberty becomes a stumbling block to them that are weak." We all know what he means, and in 1 Cor. 8:13, he says: "If meat makes my brother to offend I will eat no meat while the world stands." Although I might engage in this thing without any harm to myself, I am furnishing by my example what others take as their justification for doing it, but who are are so discering or self-controlled as I, and while I may be spared they may be injured and fall and set their feet in the way that leads to ruin.

Another's Danger.

Two little boys, one leading his smaller sister, were going through the woods. They came to a tree that had fallen across the creek and formed a natural bridge. The first little fellow bounded over and turning said, "Come on, it's easy." But the other gripped his little sister's hand a little tighter and shrank back, saying: "I could, but she might fall." And I say to you that that little fellow had more of the Spirit of Jesus Christ in him than many members of many churches who will not deny themselves some pet indulgence for the sake of some one weaker than themselves.

Paul's Reason Given.

Third—And then Paul states the matter from the standopint of the man himself.

(a) In 1 Cor. 6:42, he says such things are inexpedient, "lest I be brought under their power." If these things or any other things have taken such strong hold upon you as to cause you to prefer them to the approval of God or the honor of Christ; if you are at the place where many a young member of the church has been when they have said, "If these things are inconsistent with my being a member of the church, I shall cling to them nevertheless," then for you these things are an evil in your life.

(b- And in 1 Cor. 10:23; he says they are inexpedient "because they do not edify." They hinder growth and fill the church with barren, fruitless lives. A prominent Christian worker once said, "I never know a Christian that began to dance who was not soon missed out of the prayer meeting." Having loved this present world Demas-like they soon forsake the things of God. It seems there is an incompatibility between the two which experience proves will not abide each other.

And then, say what we will, the lovely characters of this world, in whose lives the very beauty and gentleness of Jesus have alone with resplendent glory, have not been those whose chief sources of amusement were found in the giddy, venturesome whirl of a Christ-ignoring world.

In Case of Doubt.

Fourth—And then as if our duty concerning such matters might not in some particular instance be sufficiently clear, even with such guilding principles before us, Paul in Romans 14:23 sets forth a sample rule that will always point a man to the right side if he has the least desire to do the will of God. He says, "If there is any question about it, don't do it." "Whatever is not faith," he says that is, whatever is not without doubt, without question, "is sin," and "he that doubteth," says Paul, is condemned if he does it."

And now what more could man or God say to anyone who is honestly seeking the best and highest and purest of things of life. Listen to this true story and we will leave you with God to settle this question, if you have not already done it in the deep place of your own soul.

Happy Young Couple.

In one of our eastern cities there is living a very happy couple today. On the fourth anniversary of their wedding the young wife said to the husband:

"Dick, I have been a very happy woman for four years but if only one thing else could be true I would be the happiest woman in the world."

"Well, Mollie," he said, "what is it? I would do anything for you."

"Dick," she replied. "If you were only a Christian."

"Well, Mollie, are you a Christian?" said the young husband.

"Yes, Dick," came the answer.

"Well, Mollie," said he, "I didn't know it."

Dick waited a while and then said, "See here, Mollie, I want to do what is right; you don't swear, do you?"

"Why, no," said Mollie.

"Well," said Dick, "I don't either, Mollie," he said, "you don't steal, do you?"

"Why, no, Dick; of course I don't."

"Well," he replied, "I don't either, Mollie. You don't gamble do you?"

"Why no, Dick, of course I don't."

"Well," he replied, "I don't either. "Mollie," he said, "you don't get drunk, do you?"

"Why, Dick! Why do you ask such questions of me? Of course I don't get drunk."

"Well," said Dick, "I don't either."

"Now, Mollie," he said, "you drink wine at the receptions, don't you?"

"Oh, yes," said Mollie, "I do that out of courtesy to the hostess."

"Well," said Dick, "I do too."

"Mollie," he said, "you go to the theatre, don't you?"

"Why, certainly," she replied, "I go quite often."

"Well," said Dick, "I do, too."

"Mollie," he said, "you play cards, don't you?"

"Why, yes, Dick, where's the harm in that? I play cards, of course."

"Mollie', he said, "you dance, don't you?"

"Certainly," she said, "there's no harm in dancing; I love it; I dance of course I do."

"Well," said Dick, "I do, too."

"Now, Mollie," said he, "if you'll show me the difference between the kind of life that you are living and the kind I am living I have no objections to my becoming a Christian."

Now I don't suppose there is any one in this audience who is little enough to get mad at the truth, are you? Of course if you are that little, you'll just have to get mad; that's all. But you say, "Mr. Biederwolf, be very sure you speak the truth," and I will. If ever I spoke or shall speak the truth under God's heaven, I will speak it now. It is not a matter of practice but a matter of principle. It is not a question about eating meat on Friday, or playing golf on Sunday, or taking a carriage ride on Tuesday, or going to a dance or elsewhere at any other time; it is not a matter of practice at all, but of the principle of which I speak. And here is the truth. My dear Christian wife, if the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ doesn't make any difference between the life you are living and the life your unconverted husband is living, it isn't worth recommending to him. Now, you could not get mad at that if you'd try, and so I'm going to say it again. My dear Christian sister, if the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ doesn't make any difference between the kind of life you are living and the kind of life your unconverted brother is living it isn't worth having as a means of saving and purifying the soul.

Now Mollie saw this, just as you see it. Dick started down town and a few blocks away returned for something he had forgotten and found his wife on her knees by the couch, her face buried in her hands and she was weeping. He lifted her up and asked her to forgive him if he had hurt her feelings, but she put her arms around his neck and kissed him and said: "No, Dick, it is I who ought to ask your forgiveness, and with God's help you shall have a different wife from this on."

Just 14 months after that time, Dick, a splendid young man who has since occupied positions of honor because of his sterling worth, stood up in a large religious gathering and said "For four months I have been a Christian man, won to God by the earnest, consistent, beautiful Christian life of my devoted wife."

WEAK, RUN DOWN AFTER SICKNESS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Mrs. Dube Well and Strong

E. Hartford, Conn.—"After a severe sickness I was so weak that I could not do my housework, so my mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me so much that I took six more bottles and felt fine. I have just given birth to a nice baby girl and am feeling strong and well. So different from the way I felt before. I am taking the Vegetable Compound right along while nursing. The baby seems to be in good health, and my friends say they see a big change for the better in me."—Mrs. EUGENE DUBE, 59 Woodbridge Street, East Hartford, Connecticut.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine to bring back health and strength. Many mothers have found this true, as did Mrs. Dube. Ask some of your neighbors and friends, for there are women everywhere who know by experience the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Well," he replied, "I don't either. "Mollie," he said, "you don't get drunk, do you?"

"Why, Dick! Why do you ask such questions of me? Of course I don't get drunk."

"Well," said Dick, "I don't either."

"Now, Mollie," he said, "you drink wine at the receptions, don't you?"

"Oh, yes," said Mollie, "I do that out of courtesy to the hostess."

"Well," said Dick, "I do too."

"Mollie," he said, "you go to the theatre, don't you?"

"Why, certainly," she replied, "I go quite often."

"Well," said Dick, "I do, too."

"Mollie," he said, "you play cards, don't you?"

"Why, yes, Dick, where's the harm in that? I play cards, of course."

"Mollie'," he said, "you dance, don't you?"

"Certainly," she said, "there's no harm in dancing; I love it; I dance of course I do."

"Well," said Dick, "I do, too."

"Now, Mollie," said he, "if you'll show me the difference between the kind of life that you are living and the kind I am living I have no objections to my becoming a Christian."

Now I don't suppose there is any one in this audience who is little enough to get mad at the truth, are you? Of course if you are that little, you'll just have to get mad; that's all. But you say, "Mr. Biederwolf, be very sure you speak the truth," and I will. If ever I spoke or shall speak the truth under God's heaven, I will speak it now. It is not a matter of practice but a matter of principle. It is not a question about eating meat on Friday, or playing golf on Sunday, or taking a carriage ride on Tuesday, or going to a dance or elsewhere at any other time; it is not a matter of practice at all, but of the principle of which I speak. And here is the truth. My dear Christian wife, if the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ doesn't make any difference between the life you are living and the life your unconverted husband is living, it isn't worth recommending to him. Now, you could not get mad at that if you'd try, and so I'm going to say it again. My dear Christian sister, if the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ doesn't make any difference between the kind of life you are living and the kind of life your unconverted brother is living it isn't worth having as a means of saving and purifying the soul.

Now Mollie saw this, just as you see it. Dick started down town and a few blocks away returned for something he had forgotten and found his wife on her knees by the couch, her face buried in her hands and she was weeping. He lifted her up and asked her to forgive him if he had hurt her feelings, but she put her arms around his neck and kissed him and said: "No, Dick, it is I who ought to ask your forgiveness, and with God's help you shall have a different wife from this on."

Just 14 months after that time, Dick, a splendid young man who has since occupied positions of honor because of his sterling worth, stood up in a large religious gathering and said "For four months I have been a Christian man, won to God by the earnest, consistent, beautiful Christian life of my devoted wife."

WEAK, RUN DOWN AFTER SICKNESS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Mrs. Dube Well and Strong

E. Hartford, Conn.—"After a severe sickness I was so weak that I could not do my housework, so my mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me so much that I took six more bottles and felt fine. I have just given birth to a nice baby girl and am feeling strong and well. So different from the way I felt before. I am taking the Vegetable Compound right along while nursing. The baby seems to be in good health, and my friends say they see a big change for the better in me."—Mrs. EUGENE DUBE, 59 Woodbridge Street, East Hartford, Connecticut.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine to bring back health and strength. Many mothers have found this true, as did Mrs. Dube. Ask some of your neighbors and friends, for there are women everywhere who know by experience the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

One of the best dressed men in the city came in the other day to select some clothes. He happened to remark that he wouldn't wear anything else but clothes from Altman cloth.

"Just why," our salesman inquired, "are you so thoroughly satisfied with our clothes? Is it their exceptional style?"

"No," he replied, "style alone couldn't sell me." "Their style and fine hand-tailoring?"

"No, sir. The thing that sells me on your clothes is the unusual combination of style, fine tailoring, wonderful fabrics and exclusive patterns that I have always found in their models."

This little incident is just another bit of evidence that goes to prove the superiority of Hart Schaffner & Marx, Campus Togs, Schloss Bros. and Fashion Park Clothes over brands of unknown origin at the same price or higher.

His Matted Beard Catches Fire, But Saves His Life

WEST MONROE, N. Y., Nov. 28—Theodore McGoosh, an onion grower living on the Gayville road, vowed when he started painting his farm buildings that he would not shave until the job was finished. Then he had three weeks' growth of beard, matted with much paint. McGoosh suggested gasoline to soften the beard and the family flivver gave of its life blood for the purpose. While waiting for the softening he sat down and started to light his pipe. There was an explosion, but the matted beard saved his life.

POEMS THAT LIVE

A HANKERIN' FER NELL.

Sometimes I believe I got a hankerin' fer Nell,
Else why do I ever up an' hock my watch an' sell
Half I own t' take 'er t' th' dances an' th' shows,
An' why do I singe my hair an' powder up my nose
When I go t' see 'er? Though she lives nine miles away.
An' I'm tired an' swetin' from t' toilin' o' th' day,
Ev'ry night I walk it just t' be with 'er a spell,
Sometimes I believe I got a hankerin' fer Nell.

Gave my chaw-terbacker up an' comb my hair cuz she
Said I was'n't the kind o' guy she wanted me t' be.
Allus slick my fingernails an' never use my knife
Fer t' eat with, cuz she says thet nary eny wife,
Wants a no good husband, 'I'm a gonna settle down.
Got a home a buildin' in th' corner o' th' town.
She's a gonna marry me; I ast 'er to, An'—well,
Sometimes I believe I got a hangerin' fer Nell.

Joint-Ease

Says Druggist

Joint - Ease is selling like hot cakes in my store because it is a wonderful and speedy remedy for all joint troubles.

"But why not impress on tens of thousands of suffering people some of the things that dozens of my customers tell me almost daily.

"Some say that it knocks out lumbago over night—Others assert that for chest colds and sore throat it has no equal, while many insist that there is nothing they ever tried that is so efficient for neuralgia, neuritis and even head colds and nasal catarrh."

Answering the above letter, we, the makers of Joint-Ease, know that what this thriving New Jersey druggist says is true, but we still maintain that Joint-Ease is prepared for stiff, inflamed, painful, swollen joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, finger or spine.

You'll like to use penetrating Joint-Ease, for with just one minute's rubbing, it soaks in through the flesh direct to the ailing bones and ligaments—that's why it succeeds—for when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—And without any waste of time all swelling and congestion disappears. Ask Jesse D. Holloway or any druggist anywhere.

Every rheumatic sufferer ought to send today for free book, "The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism (just out). Address H. P. Clearwater, box 800, Hallowell, Maine.

East Liverpool, Ohio, Resident Says It Saved Her Life

"World's Tonic did for me what I thought was impossible; in fact, I have every reason to believe I would not be alive today if I had not taken it," said Mrs. Ruth Beaver, 301 Moore street, East Liverpool, Ohio.

"For nearly nine years I had suffered from stomach trouble and along with it, neuritis. Gas and nausea troubled me greatly, and I often had severe pains in my arms and legs. Frequently a numb feeling would pass over my entire body. For two years I was unable to do my housework.

World's Tonic has given me a wonderful appetite and digestion, the pains and numb spells have gone, I sleep restfully, and feel built up generally, all of which I credit to the use of the World's Tonic treatment. It has been a wonderful thing for me, and I shall always feel grateful."

It is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. World's Tonic is for sale at Carnahan's, 114 East Sixth street, East End, and C. N. Brannon's, Wellsville, and all other first class druggists. $1.00 a bottle.

Sight of Ka-di-ok Ad Like Meeting Old Friend Says Man to Whom It Brought Relief

Mr. Bert Lee Price

"I was in need of a tonic and my kidneys were troubling me. I had a feeling like hot irons shooting through my back, causing me all kinds of pain and loss of rest at night. Now the pains are gone; I feel like a new man and Ka-di-ok did it."

This is the story in his own words of Bert Lee Price, who lives at 213 West Fourth street, Mansfield, Ohio, and is employed in the Turning Department at the North American Watch company's plant.

"I started taking Ka-di-ok in Marion where I knew so many of my friends had been helped by it," said Mr. Price, who is still a member of the Modern Woodmen of America, No. 3866, in Marion. "When I saw the advertising on Ka-di-ok in the newspapers here it was like meeting an old friend from home. So here I am after more and I am pleased to recommend it to the wide world."

Such enthusiasm for Ka-di-ok is not at all unusual. Thousands of people throughout the country, many of whom have obtained prompt relief from severe ailments with Ka-di-ok, have been just as eager in their praise. His Matted Beard Catches Fire, But Saves His Life

WEST MONROE, N. Y., Nov. 28—Theodore McGoosh, an onion grower living on the Gayville road, vowed when he started painting his farm buildings that he would not shave until the job was finished. Then he had three weeks' growth of beard, matted with much paint. McGoosh suggested gasoline to soften the beard and the family flivver gave of its life blood for the purpose. While waiting for the softening he sat down and started to light his pipe. There was an explosion, but the matted beard saved his life.

Else why do I ever up an' hock my watch an' sell
Half I own t' take 'er t' th' dances an' th' shows,
An' why do I singe my hair an' powder up my nose

PRINT THIS ABOUT Joint-Ease Says Druggist

Joint - Ease is selling like hot cakes in my store because it is a wonderful and speedy remedy for all joint troubles.

"But why not impress on tens of thousands of suffering people some of the things that dozens of my customers tell me almost daily.

"Some say that it knocks out lumbago over night—Others assert that for chest colds and sore throat it has no equal, while many insist that there is nothing they ever tried that is so efficient for neuralgia, neuritis and even head colds and nasal catarrh."

Answering the above letter, we, the makers of Joint-Ease, know that what this thriving New Jersey druggist says is true, but we still maintain that Joint-Ease is prepared for stiff, inflamed, painful, swollen joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, finger or spine.

You'll like to use penetrating Joint-Ease, for with just one minute's rubbing, it soaks in through the flesh direct to the ailing bones and ligaments—that's why it succeeds—for when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—And without any waste of time all swelling and congestion disappears. Ask Jesse D. Holloway or any druggist anywhere.

Westinghouse Smashes Way to Victory Over High Gridders

90-Yard Touchdown Run By English Is Locals' Big Play

Tech Eleven Hurls Weight and Power Against Blue and White Line for Four Touchdowns; Mud Handicaps Passing Game.

Their aerial play handicapped to some extent by a sticky, muddy field which made pass receiving by the ends a precarious occupation, Coach O. V. Boone's high school gridders were forced to bow to the superior line smashing ability of Westinghouse Tech yesterday afternoon at Patterson Field. The big red machine plowed its way through the Blue and White for four touchdowns, two in the first quarter, one in the third and another in the final.

Only a brilliant 90-yard run by Fullback English, in the third period, saved the locals from complete rout. Pulling down one of Tech's passes while capering about on his own 10-yard marker, English skirted the visiting squad's left end, ran secondary defense men ragged through the gluey mud and crossed the Tech goal line many yards away from would-be tacklers. It was the one big bright spot in East Liverpool's play.

The visitors sent their full strength against the Blue and White line in the first quarter and the hard driving backs pounded their way up and down the gridiron for 11 first downs on off tackle bucks and end runs. Tech took the kick-off and from its own 35-yard line and smashed its way to the goal line.

Similar tactics were used largely by the visitors for their second touchdown of the period, with the exception of the fact that several passes and long end runs augmented the line crashing program.

Tech found early in the contest that the one spot that would not break was at center. At no time during the engagement was a gain of any considerable yardage made at this point. East Liverpool ends were sucked in consistently during the first quarter but out-manouvered their foes in the second period and results were better.

The visitors went scoreless in the second period with play being staged largely in mid-field or Tech territory. At no time during this quarter was the East Liverpool goal line endangered, and the half ended with the score 13-0.

Six points were registered by each squad in the third canto. The visitors took the ball shortly after the period got under way and steam rolled their way to the East Liverpool eight-yard line. Here the left side of the Blue and White line cracked temporarily, long enough to permit Fullback Conable to sneak through for eight yards and a touchdown.

The locals received the kick but were unable to advance against the Tech defenders and were forced to punt, in turn. Tech threatened another touchdown, pounding the Blue and White back to their own 15-yard line. Held without gain for two downs, the visitors essayed a forward pass. Fullback English brought it down near the 10-yard mark and raced the ball back to the Tech goal line. McConville missed the try for point.

East Liverpool made several threatening thrusts into Tech territory in the final period but lost ground at the crucial moment and once again the big Tech line and backs smashed through to the Blue and White goal line, Boyd going over for the concluding tally.

The great defensive work of B. Perry, Horger, and Bough who played at the guard posts at one time or another during the game, and Center Larkins was outstanding. Captain Dale Liebschner played his usual brilliant game, at tackle. English and McConville were the stars of the backfield.

The entire visiting squad played consistent football throughout the contest, working as a machine.

EAST BOASTS THREE 'CHAMPS'

Penn, Yale, Dartmouth Have Unbeaten Teams.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Collegiate football honors were conferred on the leading teams of three sections as a result of the holiday games yesterday. Pennsylvania's victory over Cornell placed the Red and Blue on the eastern pedestal with Yale and Dartmouth, all three completing their seasons without defeat although playing tie games.

This means the sharing of eastern championship honors for the fifth successive season.

Alabama clinched its claim to the southern conference title by swarming all over Georgia, but it must concede the sectional honors to Centre college. The Colonels defeated Alabama several weeks ago. In the Missouri Valley conference, the University of Missouri climbed to the top by defeating Kansas. It was the first time Missouri was able to take the chapionship away from Nebraska in some years.

Pittsburgh's defeat of Penn State and the size of the score by which West Virginia disposed of Washington and Jefferson, were the only surprises of the day.

GREYS FREMONTS PLAY 0-0 GAME

The East Liverpool Greys brought their season to a close yesterday morning at Patterson Field, playing the Fremont A. A. of Pittsburgh to a 0-0 tie.

The contest was staged on a muddy field and anything of the sensational was out of order. Both elevens were well matched.

Rockne's System Works With Other Teams

Chet Wynne, former Notre Dame fullback and teammate of Gipp and Mohardt, has proved with his Creighton University eleven this year that Knute Rockne's system is a winner any place. Creighton has won its last 11 games and is the most powerful team in the Missouri conference. Coach Chet Wynne (center), and some of his stars. Upper left, "Sas" Cleave, halfback. Upper right, Quarterback Frank Mahoney. Below, Halfback Joe Speicher, Fullback Johnny Bertolgio and Halfback Ray Lower.

West's Coaches Pay Penn Great Tribute After Cornell Game

Stagg, Smith, Roper, and Even Gil Dobie, Defeated Mentor Have Nothing But Praise for Red and Blue Eleven.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. Nov. 28.—Five of the nine visiting coaches who saw an unbeaten team of the east, Pennsylvania, finish its regulation season with a decision over Cornell, united today in rendering unto Caesar the things that are Casesar's and to Penn the things that are Penn's. They were Alonzo Stage, eminent coach of the Chicago Champion of the big ten; Bill Roper of Princeton; Andy Smith of California; Gil Dobie of Cornell and Bob Fisher, of Harvard.

All whispered sweet nothings in commendation of the red and blue, Dobie even going so far as to say that the team was greater than Dartmouth, which with Yale and Pennsylvania completes the championship trinity of eastern football. Smith, whose California bear will dally with Pennsylvania on New Year's Day, professed to fear the worst for his young men when the occasion in question develops. Stagg was pleased to proclaim that Pennsylvania had a truly "Marvelous team."

"Its defense is almosa perfect", the Chicago coach declared. "The aerial attack is well executed and its running plays are very good. It seems to me that the east has at least one representative champion in Pennsylvania. I haven't seen Yale or Dartmouth".

Stagg declined to be drawn into a discussion on the relative merits of Eastern and Western football. Neither would he venture an opinion as to how well Pennsylvania compared with other teams he had seen.

Dobie and Smith were not so reticent, however, they spoke right out in meeting as it were, much after the manner of Bob Zuppke of Illinois. Zuppke witnessed yesterday's proceedings but could not be located for an opinion today.

"Pennsylvania has a great team one of the greatest in this country," said Dobie, the defeated Coach. "In many ways, it is greater than Dartmouth, the best team we previously had played this season."

Smith, who was standing nearby with Fisher and Roper, added his lyric tenor to the chorus. Shooting from the hip, he said:

"I'm glad I took the trouble to come East to scout Pennsylvania. I saw plenty to take back with me and think about. Penn played very smart football, the kind that wins football games. Ground gained means nothing if a team cannot take advantage of the breaks. Penn did this at all times. It is the kind of team that is never beaten and, I for one, feel none to confident of the issue on New Year's day.

Roper's contribution was equally wholehearted. He said that Penn's deceptive attack was the weapon that beat Cornell, and added:

"A great team, with very few flaws, well coached and powerful."

So much for expert opinion on Pennsylvania. It amounts almost to a choral panegyric but, strange to relate, it is at direct variance with the common idea entertained with the lay mind as a result of Cornell's defeat. The majority opinion is that Pennsylvania scored three touchdowns not because of intrinsic greatness, but because it got the breaks.

ONE CONTEST IN 'Y' LEAGUE

Only one contest is scheduled in the "Y" industrial basketball league tonight. The Laughlin 6-Potters clash will furnish the only entertainment.

The Trotters and Laughlin 5 teams were scheduled to clash but illness among members of the Trotter crew forced a postponement.

CHILLICOTHE—As a result of many complaints, Chief of Police Charles Fox has declared war on all street loafers. Men with no apparent income or means of support will be charged with loitering.

K. T. K. SOCCER CLUB VICTOR

Defeating the Laughlin Soccer team, 6 to 1, yesterday morning at Newell park, the K. T. K. leather pushers won the final game of the series and copped honors for the three games.

Aldridge, Plant and Daniels scored two foal apiece. Rairden registered Laughiin's sole tally.

K. T. K. won the first game of the series, 2 to 1, and the second was tied at1-1.

Bethlehem in Third Place.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Bethlehem Steel soccer team today rested in third place in the American Soccer league following its defeat of the Newark football club by the score of 5 to 1.

SPEARS' ELEVEN CLOSES SEASON

Will Not Play Post-Season Game on Pacific Coast.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 28.—Athletic department officials of West Virginia university intimated last night that the Mountaineer eleven which completed its 1924 schedule there this afternoon is not likely to play a post season game.

Several weeks ago West Virginia received a tentative invitation to meet the University of Washington on the Pacific Coast next Saturday, December 6, but no definite action was taken and no effort made to open negotiations.

There seems to be a growing sentiment against post season games especially when there is no championship at stake unless the December and January contests are considered a part of the regular schedule and arranged far in advance.

West Virginia does hope to be considered the east's representative and both athletic authorities and faculty deem it inadvisable to engage in a contest of minor importance.

Yesterday's game, then, was the closing chapter of the season's history so far as actual competition is concerned. After the final whistle members of the varsity equad turned in their uniforms and today the work of packing the gridiron equipment for future use will be started by assistant student managers.

Captain Fred Graham, and; Gus Ekberg, fullback; Phil Hill, center; Nick Nardacci, halfback; and Paul Stinebicker, fullback, have played their last game for the Mountaineers. Their passing is a distinct loss and it is not going to be an easy matter to replace them.

Westinghouse Smashes Way to Victory Over High Gridders

90-Yard Touchdown Run By English Is Locals' Big Play

Tech Eleven Hurls Weight and Power Against Blue and White Line for Four Touchdowns; Mud Handicaps Passing Game.

Their aerial play handicapped to some extent by a sticky, muddy field which made pass receiving by the ends a precarious occupation, Coach O. V. Boone's high school gridders were forced to bow to the superior line smashing ability of Westinghouse Tech yesterday afternoon at Patterson Field. The big red machine plowed its way through the Blue and White for four touchdowns, two in the first quarter, one in the third and another in the final.

Only a brilliant 90-yard run by Fullback English, in the third period, saved the locals from complete rout. Pulling down one of Tech's passes while capering about on his own 10-yard marker, English skirted the visiting squad's left end, ran secondary defense men ragged through the gluey mud and crossed the Tech goal line many yards away from would-be tacklers. It was the one big bright spot in East Liverpool's play.

The visitors sent their full strength against the Blue and White line in the first quarter and the hard driving backs pounded their way up and down the gridiron for 11 first downs on off tackle bucks and end runs. Tech took the kick-off and from its own 35-yard line and smashed its way to the goal line.

Similar tactics were used largely by the visitors for their second touchdown of the period, with the exception of the fact that several passes and long end runs augmented the line crashing program.

Tech found early in the contest that the one spot that would not break was at center. At no time during the engagement was a gain of any considerable yardage made at this point. East Liverpool ends were sucked in consistently during the first quarter but out-manouvered their foes in the second period and results were better.

The visitors went scoreless in the second period with play being staged largely in mid-field or Tech territory. At no time during this quarter was the East Liverpool goal line endangered, and the half ended with the score 13-0.

Six points were registered by each squad in the third canto. The visitors took the ball shortly after the period got under way and steam rolled their way to the East Liverpool eight-yard line. Here the left side of the Blue and White line cracked temporarily, long enough to permit Fullback Conable to sneak through for eight yards and a touchdown.

The locals received the kick but were unable to advance against the Tech defenders and were forced to punt, in turn. Tech threatened another touchdown, pounding the Blue and White back to their own 15-yard line. Held without gain for two downs, the visitors essayed a forward pass. Fullback English brought it down near the 10-yard mark and raced the ball back to the Tech goal line. McConville missed the try for point.

East Liverpool made several threatening thrusts into Tech territory in the final period but lost ground at the crucial moment and once again the big Tech line and backs smashed through to the Blue and White goal line, Boyd going over for the concluding tally.

The great defensive work of B. Perry, Horger, and Bough who played at the guard posts at one time or another during the game, and Center Larkins was outstanding. Captain Dale Liebschner played his usual brilliant game, at tackle. English and McConville were the stars of the backfield.

The entire visiting squad played consistent football throughout the contest, working as a machine.

EAST BOASTS THREE 'CHAMPS'

Penn, Yale, Dartmouth Have Unbeaten Teams.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Collegiate football honors were conferred on the leading teams of three sections as a result of the holiday games yesterday. Pennsylvania's victory over Cornell placed the Red and Blue on the eastern pedestal with Yale and Dartmouth, all three completing their seasons without defeat although playing tie games.

This means the sharing of eastern championship honors for the fifth successive season.

Alabama clinched its claim to the southern conference title by swarming all over Georgia, but it must concede the sectional honors to Centre college. The Colonels defeated Alabama several weeks ago. In the Missouri Valley conference, the University of Missouri climbed to the top by defeating Kansas. It was the first time Missouri was able to take the chapionship away from Nebraska in some years.

Pittsburgh's defeat of Penn State and the size of the score by which West Virginia disposed of Washington and Jefferson, were the only surprises of the day.

GREYS FREMONTS PLAY 0-0 GAME

The East Liverpool Greys brought their season to a close yesterday morning at Patterson Field, playing the Fremont A. A. of Pittsburgh to a 0-0 tie.

The contest was staged on a muddy field and anything of the sensational was out of order. Both elevens were well matched.

Rockne's System Works With Other Teams

Chet Wynne, former Notre Dame fullback and teammate of Gipp and Mohardt, has proved with his Creighton University eleven this year that Knute Rockne's system is a winner any place. Creighton has won its last 11 games and is the most powerful team in the Missouri conference. Coach Chet Wynne (center), and some of his stars. Upper left, "Sas" Cleave, halfback. Upper right, Quarterback Frank Mahoney. Below, Halfback Joe Speicher, Fullback Johnny Bertolgio and Halfback Ray Lowez.

West's Coaches Pay Penn Great Tribute After Cornell Game

Stagg, Smith, Roper, and Even Gil Dobie, Defeated Mentor Have Nothing But Praise for Red and Blue Eleven.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. Nov. 28.—Five of the nine visiting coaches who saw an unbeaten team of the east, Pennsylvania, finish its regulation season with a decision over Cornell, united today in rendering unto Caesar the things that are Casesar's and to Penn the things that are Penn's. They were Alonzo Stage, eminent coach of the Chicago Champion of the big ten; Bill Roper of Princeton; Andy Smith of California; Gil Dobie of Cornell and Bob Fisher, of Harvard.

All whispered sweet nothings in commendation of the red and blue, Dobie even going so far as to say that the team was greater than Dartmouth, which with Yale and Pennsylvania completes the championship trinity of eastern football. Smith, whose California bear will dally with Pennsylvania on New Year's Day, professed to fear the worst for his young men when the occasion in question develops. Stagg was pleased to proclaim that Pennsylvania had a truly "Marvelous team."

"Its defense is almosa perfect", the Chicago coach declared. "The aerial attack is well executed and its running plays are very good. It seems to me that the east has at least one representative champion in Pennsylvania. I haven't seen Yale or Dartmouth".

Stagg declined to be drawn into a discussion on the relative merits of Eastern and Western football. Neither would he venture an opinion as to how well Pennsylvania compared with other teams he had seen.

Dobie and Smith were not so reticent, however, they spoke right out in meeting as it were, much after the manner of Bob Zuppke of Illinois. Zuppke witnessed yesterday's proceedings but could not be located for an opinion today.

"Pennsylvania has a great team one of the greatest in this country," said Dobie, the defeated Coach. "In many ways, it is greater than Dartmouth, the best team we previously had played this season."

Smith, who was standing nearby with Fisher and Roper, added his lyric tenor to the chorus. Shooting from the hip, he said:

"I'm glad I took the trouble to come East to scout Pennsylvania. I saw plenty to take back with me and think about. Penn played very smart football, the kind that wins football games. Ground gained means nothing if a team cannot take advantage of the breaks. Penn did this at all times. It is the kind of team that is never beaten and, I for one, feel none to confident of the issue on New Year's day.

Roper's contribution was equally wholehearted. He said that Penn's deceptive attack was the weapon that beat Cornell, and added:

"A great team, with very few flaws, well coached and powerful."

So much for expert opinion on Pennsylvania. It amounts almost to a choral panegyric but, strange to relate, it is at direct variance with the common idea entertained with the lay mind as a result of Cornell's defeat. The majority opinion is that Pennsylvania scored three touchdowns not because of intrinsic greatness, but because it got the breaks.

ONE CONTEST IN 'Y' LEAGUE

Only one contest is scheduled in the "Y" industrial basketball league tonight. The Laughlin 6-Potters clash will furnish the only entertainment.

The Trotters and Laughlin 5 teams were scheduled to clash but illness among members of the Trotter crew forced a postponement.

CHILLICOTHE.—As a result of many complaints, Chief of Police Charles Fox has declared war on all street loafers. Men with no apparent income or means of support will be charged with loitering.

K. T. K. SOCCER CLUB VICTOR

Defeating the Laughlin Soccer team, 6 to 1, yesterday morning at Newell park, the K. T. K. leather pushers won the final game of the series and copped honors for the three games.

Aldridge, Plant and Daniels scored two foal apiece. Rairden registered Laughiin's sole tally.

K. T. K. won the first game of the series, 2 to 1, and the second was tied at1-1.

Bethlehem in Third Place.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Bethlehem Steel soccer team today rested in third place in the American Soccer league following its defeat of the Newark football club by the score of 5 to 1.

SPEARS' ELEVEN CLOSES SEASON

Will Not Play Post-Season Game on Pacific Coast.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 28.—Athletic department officials of West Virginia university intimated last night that the Mountaineer eleven which completed its 1924 schedule there this afternoon is not likely to play a post season game.

Several weeks ago West Virginia received a tentative invitation to meet the University of Washington on the Pacific Coast next Saturday, December 6, but no definite action was taken and no effort made to open negotiations.

There seems to be a growing sentiment against post season games especially when there is no championship at stake unless the December and January contests are considered a part of the regular schedule and arranged far in advance.

West Virginia does hope to be considered the east's representative and both athletic authorities and faculty deem it inadvisable to engage in a contest of minor importance.

Yesterday's game, then, was the closing chapter of the season's history so far as actual competition is concerned. After the final whistle members of the varsity equad turned in their uniforms and today the work of packing the gridiron equipment for future use will be started by assistant student managers.

Captain Fred Graham, and; Gus Ekberg, fullback; Phil Hill, center; Nick Nardacci, halfback; and Paul Stinebicker, fullback, have played their last game for the Mountaineers. Their passing is a distinct loss and it is not going to be an easy matter to replace them.

SHIMMY BANNED AS "JIMMSKA" MAKES ADVENT

Dancing Masters Plan to Internationalize Steps.

PARIS MEETING

Revise Fashionable Dances and Polish up Other Favorites.

PARIS—The "Jimmska" is going to replace the Shimmy in the Parisian dance halls this year. This and the "hug-me-tight" verdict are the most important decisions reached by the forty dancing masters who have recently been holding congress in the French capital.

Americons and Asiatics, Austrians, Englishmen, Belgians, Germans, Italians, Greeks and Brazilians—thirteen nations in all have been taking part in the exchange of opinion which is to bring about a change in dance steps. Their first care was to revise the fashionable dances of the day and then to polish up and improve in some details teh half a dozen steps to which the public remains faithful.

One delegation, that of Rumania, was even invested with an official mission from its government to draw up a sort of dancing code, making every dance teh same whether it be danced in Milan or Paris, Copenhagen or Bucharest. A rather heated debate followed the discussion of the rules of the tango, the German delegates refusing to subscribe to the "pas croise." But all agreed that the dancers must be at very close quarters—as close as possible, in fact—so that they will sense each other's rhythm. It promises to be a "hug-her-tight" Winter; but this, of course, bars the "strangle-hold," except in the bal-musette.

The "Jimmska" gets its name from Prof. Jimmy, of Marseilles, a graceful Greek and president of the International Choreographic Union. It is really a super-tango, with pointed side steps, little tappings of the toes and a difficult half-turn, which will have to be much practiced.

A new five-step, particularly difficult for beginners, but a charm for dancing room dance, was voted the best dance of the season, winning the day by 38 votes. It was especially favored by the professors of Central Europe. Two long steps, another two long ones, then a short one and two other long ones—this is what it looks like. The "Huppa-huppa" came in second place, a Chilean dance, including a remarkable pose, in which the dancer and his partner both lean backward as far as possible without losing their balance. It bears the label, "Made in France," for the author is Monsieur Piau, who demnstrated the dance at Deauville last summer.

"Volta," which is a kind of Boston, will be popular, but the shimmy is absolutely taboo. The Cairo professors tried to introduce an Egyptian tango, but it was ruled out as too unaesthetic.

Many firms in foreign countries are buying American-made rubber balloons, toys and balls for the Christmas season.

SCHOOL DAYS — By Dwig

SHIMMY BANNED AS "JIMMSKA" MAKES ADVENT

Dancing Masters Plan to Internationalize Steps.

PARIS MEETING

Revise Fashionable Dances and Polish up Other Favorites.

PARIS—The "Jimmska" is going to replace the Shimmy in the Parisian dance halls this year. This and the "hug-me-tight" verdict are the most important decisions reached by the forty dancing masters who have recently been holding congress in the French capital.

Americons and Asiatics, Austrians, Englishmen, Belgians, Germans, Italians, Greeks and Brazilians—thirteen nations in all have been taking part in the exchange of opinion which is to bring about a change in dance steps. Their first care was to revise the fashionable dances of the day and then to polish up and improve in some details teh half a dozen steps to which the public remains faithful.

One delegation, that of Rumania, was even invested with an official mission from its government to draw up a sort of dancing code, making every dance teh same whether it be danced in Milan or Paris, Copenhagen or Bucharest. A rather heated debate followed the discussion of the rules of the tango, the German delegates refusing to subscribe to the "pas croise." But all agreed that the dancers must be at very close quarters—as close as possible. in fact—so that they will sense each other's rhythm. It promises to be a "hug-her-tight" Winter; but this, of course, bars the "strangle-hold," except in the bal-musette.

The "Jimmska" gets its name from Prof. Jimmy, of Marseilles, a graceful Greek and president of the International Choreographic Union. It is really a super-tango, with pointed side steps, little tappings of the toes and a difficult half-turn, which will have to be much practiced.

A new five-step, particularly difficult for beginners, but a charm for drawing room dance, was voted the best dance of the season, winning the day by 38 votes. It was especially favored by the professors of Central Europe. Two long steps, another two long ones, then a short one and two other long ones—this is what it looks like. The "Huppa-huppa" came in second place, a Chilean dance, including a remarkable pose, in which the dancer and his partner both lean backward as far as possible without losing their balance. It bears the label, "Made in France," for the author is Monsieur Piau, who demnstrated the dance at Deauville last summer.

"Volta," which is a kind of Boston, will be popular, but the shimmy is absolutely taboo. The Cairo professors tried to introduce an Egyptian tango, but it was ruled out as too unaesthetic.

Many firms in foreign countries are buying American-made rubber balloons, toys and balls for the Christmas season.

Custom Abandoned; Wore His Overalls To His Wedding

ROME, N. Y., Nov.—Getting married is just like lots of other things; there's no use getting excited about it, according to James McMiller recently.

James was married to Hamie Fowler, of West Rome; but he didn't go home to change his overalls for his dress suit. He just "knocked off' work long enough to go to the City Clerk's office to get the license and then step across the hall to the office of City Judge T. J. McNamara for the ceremony.

Bulgarian Bachelors Cursing Stambolisky For Imposing Tax

SOFIA.—Thirty thousand Bulgarian bachelors are cursing the shade of Stambolisky.

The government has revived a Stambolisky government measure taxing bachelors, declaring that the law is legal and that it will go into effect on January 1, 1925.

There are 100,000 fewer females than males in Bulgaria, so the bachelors are complaining that they have no way of escaping the tax by turning benedicts.

The government's answer is that there are surplus women in neighboring states, and there is no objection to importation of wives.

Seek Home for Boy.

ATHENS.—Court officials here have been informed that the bureau of juvenile research at Columbus is hunting a home for Ralph Roberts, 9-year-old Millfield boy who wrecked a train there several months ago. The boy placed a board on the rails, wrecked a passenger train, killing the engineer. State experts, it is said, have found him much below average mentality.

Exciting Experience.

LIMA.—To wait at the mercy of the Atlantic and then to be rescued from a foundering ship after 24 hours, was the experience of W. Afl Miller, of the Illinois Pipe Line company, who returned here from South America. Miller left South America on the steamer Decapa, of the United Fruit company line. The steamer ran aground 65 miles off the east coast of Cuba. After 24 hours of waiting, the passenger and ship's crew were picked up by a Chilean steamer and brought to New York.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Boils! "Ouch!"

S.S.S. will rid you of boils, pimples, blackheads and skin eruptions!

DON'T CLOSE your eyes to the warning which Nature gives when angry, painful boils appear on your neck, face or other parts of your body. Boils, pimples and so-called skin disorders are the result of an impoverished condition of the blood and are not to be trifled with.

It is nothing more than folly to expect to get absolute relief from the use of local treatments, such as ointments, salves, etc. Such remedies may afford temporary relief but you want more than relief; you want a remedy which will rid you forever of the torturing disorder. And the one remedy which has no equal is S.S.S.

S.S.S. stops boils and keeps them from coming. S.S.S. builds blood-power! That is what makes fighting blood. Fighting blood destroys impurities. It fights boils! It fights skin eruptions—pimples, blackheads, eczema! It always wins! S.S.S. has been known since 1826 as one of the greatest blood builders, blood cleansers and system strengtheners ever produced. There are no unproven theories about S.S.S., the scientific results of each of its purely vegetable medicinal ingredients are admitted by authorities. Begin taking S.S.S. today and clear your skin of those blood disorders!

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Boils! "Ouch"

S.S.S. will rid you of boils, pimples, blackheads and skin eruptions!

DON'T CLOSE your eyes to the warning which Nature gives when angry, painful boils appear on your neck, face or other parts of your body. Boils, pimples and so-called skin disorders are the result of an impoverished condition of the blood and are not to be trifled with.

It is nothing more than folly to expect to get absolute relief from the use of local treatments, such as ointments, salves, etc. Such remedies may afford temporary relief but you want more than relief; you want a remedy which will rid you forever of the torturing disorder. And the one remedy which has no equal is S.S.S.

S.S.S. stops boils and keeps them from coming. S.S.S. builds blood-power! That is what makes fighting blood. Fighting blood destroys impurities. It fights boils! It fights skin eruptions—pimples, blackheads, eczema! It always wins! S.S.S. has been known since 1826 as one of the greatest blood builders, blood cleansers and system strengtheners ever produced. There are no unproven theories about S.S.S., the scientific results of each of its purely vegetable medicinal ingredients are admitted by authorities. Begin taking S.S.S. today and clear your skin of those blood disorders!

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)
